Mission and Vision of the Faculty of Law

Overview of the JD Programme

JURIS DOCTOR ASIA YOUR POSTGRADUATE LAW DEGREE

The Juris Doctor (JD) is a versatile postgraduate law degree that leads potentially to admission as barrister or solicitor in Hong Kong. It is also suitable for candidates who strive to become leaders in fields such as commerce, finance, academia, government, community service, law enforcement, public administration, education and the media. The JD is a respected and internationally recognised award many universities in leading jurisdictions abroad confer. The Faculty of Law teaches and assesses all JD Programme courses at The Chinese University of Hong Kong (CUHK) entirely in the English language.

The JD Programme gives students an intellectually enriching foundational education in law that also lets them study a wide range of challenging elective courses in the common law, Chinese law, comparative law, international law, and the law of trade, business and finance. The Faculty of Law encourages JD students to look behind the contemporary rules of law to the values, purposes and policies underlying them.

The JD Programme is entirely postgraduate. Our JD students often join Master of Laws (LLM) and other postgraduate law students in classes. The JD Programme is a taught Master's degree and it is not customary for JD graduates to use the title, "Doctor".

With CUHK as its home, experienced and dedicated international teachers and a strong focus on students, the JD Programme gives students an unparalleled opportunity for professional and academic growth.

The JD Programme has already established itself as a leader in professional legal education in Hong Kong and the East Asian region.

Enriched by the intellectual and cultural heritage of its University and at the heart of the legal system, the Faculty of Law brings together common law and Chinese law with other great legal traditions and values to promote justice and safeguard the rule of law.

An international family of research-led scholars creates a dynamic, flexible learning environment. Students are encouraged to develop a deep and critical understanding of legal theory and practice. Graduates will possess the intellectual skills and ethical values to enable them to become future leaders and better serve the needs of the community.

Supported by world class research, the Faculty of Law provides a flexible, learner-centred environment in which students are actively engaged and prepared for distinction in the legal profession and for leadership roles in Hong Kong, China, and internationally.

The Faculty is building strong and enduring links with alumni and friends so that law students are educated and fully equipped for successful careers in the legal profession, government, business, and industry.

JD Programme Requirements

The JD Programme consists of 72 units (i.e., the equivalent of 24 term-length courses, each worth 3 units). Students may enroll in full-time or part-time mode of study. Full-time students can complete the JD Programme in as short as 24 months (the normative study period) or as long as 48 months (the maximum study period). Part-time students can complete the JD Programme in 42 months* (the normative study period) or as long as 84 months (the maximum study period).

To graduate, students must complete four required courses. These are Comparative Legal Studies, Legal System, Legal Research, Analysis and Writing and Ethics and Jurisprudence. The Faculty of Law provides these required courses to give JD students the foundational knowledge and skills for a well-rounded general legal education and a first-hand appreciation of the relationship between the legal system and the broader community it serves and regulates. Moreover, all students must complete a mandatory research component by undertaking either Independent Research or the more extensive Independent Research Dissertation. In this research component, students should demonstrate a mastery of legal research and writing and the capacity to think creatively about law.

The Faculty of Law offers its own innovative Postgraduate Certificate in Laws (PCLL) Programme. Students aspiring to be admitted as a barrister or solicitor in Hong Kong must pursue courses stipulated by the Hong Kong legal professions. Students who pass these may then apply to be admitted to the PCLL Programme. These courses are also open to students who do not plan to enter the PCLL Programme.

Our JD students choose elective courses from a wide range of intellectually enriching and professionally enhancing offerings. Reading these subjects enables our JD students to complete their degree requirements while expanding their intellectual breadth and furthering their professional goals.

Most JD courses are worth 3 units. Students will have an average of 3 contact hours per week with teachers in each course. The Faculty of Law holds classes during daytime and evenings of weekdays and daytime on Saturdays. Evening classes typically begin at 6:30pm. Classes incorporate a mix of lectures, seminars, presentations and class discussion.

Finally, all students must meet the minimum cumulative GPA required by the University for postgraduate programmes before they may graduate.

* Part-time students may apply to accelerate their studies and complete the JD Programme in 36 months with the permission of the Graduate Council on the recommendation of the Faculty of Law.

Our Student Profile

The CUHK JD Programme is distinguished not only by the strength and global character of its academic faculty, but also by the quality and breadth of its student body.

Admission to the JD Programme is highly competitive. Every year, around half of our students are admitted with an undergraduate degree awarded with first class honours, a doctorate, a Master's degree with distinction or a Bachelor's degree with borderline first class honours (or equivalent). The remaining students are admitted with a strong second upper class degree or equivalent. A significant proportion of our students have received one or more of their degrees outside Hong Kong, frequently at leading universities in North America, Europe, China and Australasia. Our students' academic backgrounds cover virtually every discipline, from accountancy to zoology. This mix of students enriches the JD teaching and learning experience.

Some come from extensive practice backgrounds, holding senior positions in legal practice and other fields across many jurisdictions. All strive for excellence in teaching and research and are committed to educating students in the law by drawing on their diverse teaching, research and professional experience.

The Learning Environment

GRADUATE LAW CENTRE

The Faculty of Law delivers all JD courses in the CUHK Graduate Law Centre, located in Hong Kong's central business district at 2/F, Bank of America Tower, Central. Teaching facilities in the Graduate Law Centre include the Warren Chan Moot Court, lecture theatres, classrooms and breakout rooms. All rooms are equipped with state-of-the-art facilities. The Graduate Law Centre also has a Legal Resources Centre, a computer laboratory and a student common area with computer stations that serve all postgraduate students undertaking their studies. JD students also have access to facilities on the CUHK main campus in Shatin on the same basis as other postgraduate students of the University.

International Exchange

Exchanges give students the opportunity to travel to new places, to meet new people, to experience new cultures, to learn new subjects, to refresh their minds and to impress future employers.

JD students may transfer credits they earn abroad to count towards their degree requirements. In addition to university-wide exchanges, which cover more than two hundred destinations, the Faculty of Law offers faculty-based exchanges. Through these, students may study abroad at Melbourne Law School of the University of Melbourne (Australia), Washington College of Law of American University (USA), Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law of Yeshiva University (USA), the Faculty of Law of the University of Auckland (New Zealand), the Faculty of Law of Maastricht University (Netherlands), the School of Law of Bocconi University (Italy) and Osgoode Hall Law School of York University (Canada).

Mooting

Mooting gives students a taste of life as a lawyer presenting written and oral arguments in complex hypothetical court cases. CUHK LAW students annually participate in internal, local, regional and international mooting competitions. CUHK LAW has enjoyed great success in all mooting competitions since mooting was first offered twelve years ago.

In 2019-20 law students successfully represented the Faculty at international competitions. CUHK LAW encourages students to participate in mooting competitions. Participation may attract course credits towards degree completion. An academic staff member advises each team and supervises its work. Practice moots take place in the state-of-the-art Warren Chan Moot Court at the Graduate Law Centre.

In 2019-20 CUHK LAW moot teams achieved the following results:

The CUHK LAW Philip C. Jessup International Law mooting team won the regional rounds and one of the team members received the Best Oralist award.

At the Vis (Vienna) International Commercial Arbitration Moot, CUHK LAW won a number of awards, including Honourable Mentions (top 10%) for their Memorandum for the Claimant and for their Memorandum for the Respondent, and two Honourable Mentions (top 10%) for advocacy. At the Vis (East-Hong Kong) International Commercial Arbitration Moot, CUHK LAW won the championship and an individual award of an Honourable Mention (top 10%) for oral advocacy.

In the International Criminal Court Moot Court Competition, CUHK LAW placed first and won a host of awards including the Best Memorial Team Overall, the Best Regional Memorial for Asia, the Best Defense Counsel Memorial, the Second Runner-up for Best Memorial, and the Second Runner-up for Best Prosecution Memorial.

In the Leiden-Sarin International Air Law Moot Court Competition, CUHK LAW won the Best Respondent Memorial and second place in the competition.

Career Success & Careers Facilities

Most of our students intend, after completing their degree, to complete the Postgraduate Certificate in Laws (PCLL) before moving on to careers in legal practice, many aiming for top firms and barristers' chambers. Some graduates choose to go into government or industry. Others remain in academia. Their achievements are testimony to their hard work and the quality of their education.

Law Student Careers Office

The Faculty's Law Student Careers Office provides students with guidance on career choices, applications and interviews as well as assistance with career preparation and professional development. The Director, Mr. Paul Mitchard QC, has prepared a programme of seminars on career and professionalism topics which includes presentations by representatives of law firms, barristers' chambers and other prospective employers.

Virtual Careers Resource Centre

The Law Student Careers Office also maintains a Virtual Careers Resource Centre (VCRC) which serves as a contact point for prospective employers, teaching faculty members and students. The VCRC contains a Legal Careers Directory with up-to-date information on law firms and chambers and on internships and other employment opportunities for students. The VCRC website (<https://www.law.cuhk.edu.hk/app/student-careers/>) also notifies careers seminars and other events as well as providing students with information on matters such as job applications and CV preparation and with a wide range of other career-related resources designed to ensure that Faculty of Law students are fully informed and equipped for entering into what today is a challenging and rapidly-changing jobs market.

E-mentoring

The Careers Office also supports an e-mentoring programme through which students may connect with Law Faculty alumni in their chosen field for career guidance and help with achieving the level of professionalism which many employers require.

"Today's prospective employers look for evidence of a broad range of skills going beyond academic achievement and it is crucial that students understand how to meet this challenge and take steps early in their University career to put themselves in the best position to meet these demands."

Mr. Paul Mitchard QC
Director of Career Planning and Professionalism

In the beginning, I had doubts regarding my decision to quit my banking job of ten years to pursue my Juris Doctor degree. But after two years, I can honestly say that pursuing this degree is the best decision I have made in my life. Legal knowledge aside, this degree has taught me analytic and investigative skills that are applicable in different aspects of life. Most importantly, I was able to encounter a group of friends who share similar values in life and goals, which make the whole studying experience even more fulfilling, which I will forever be grateful for.

CUHK Law preps its students by building a strong foundation about the Hong Kong legal system with an overview of international law. It offers the opportunity to explore niche practice areas through excellent conferences and other student engagements.

The law professors and administration for offer an incredible support system to students. The best thing about the program is the level of flexibility and the diverse opportunities it offers to students, making them adaptable and resourceful for their legal careers ahead.

The courses offered in the JD programme are demanding and have equipped me with lawyering skills which are crucial to my future practice as a lawyer. Notwithstanding the vigorous and challenging curriculum, I enjoy reading law at CUHK because each seminar is very intellectually stimulating, thanks to the excellent teaching team at CUHK Law. The teaching team is very supportive which helped me to adapt to law school very quickly. The career support from CUHK Law, in particular the one-on-one careers consultations, also helped me a lot in my career planning and job applications.

Studying at CUHK LAW has been a most rewarding experience. The JD Programme not only teaches “what is law”, but also “what the law ought to be”.

In each course, there is always a discussion on how the law can improve. The international faculty challenges students to compare Hong Kong’s situation against the experience from foreign jurisdictions. Many of my classmates, who studied different subjects at college or had work experience, also provided refreshing perspectives.

This engaging learning atmosphere has taught me to approach legal issues with an open mind and creativity.

If you would like to pursue a legal career in Hong Kong, the JD Programme is your best option. I previously considered receiving my legal education in the UK, but ultimately decided that if I wanted to begin my legal career in Hong Kong, I should acquaint myself with Hong Kong and Chinese law as much as possible during my legal studies - and I am glad to know that I made the right decision. With its impressive list of electives, the JD Programme offers you the chance not just to learn about Hong Kong and Chinese law, but also about the many different areas in which law is essential in our society.

Pursuing a new career direction is never easy, but the CUHK JD Programme has prepared and equipped me well for the journey ahead.

I have thoroughly enjoyed studying in an intellectually stimulating environment with a diverse cohort of bright and expressive students. Besides the heartfelt teaching by a group of international and highly qualified Faculty members, the Faculty is extremely resourceful as it provides a wide array of elective courses, guest lectures and international conferences. These events keep students up to date with the latest happenings in the legal industry and serve as great networking platforms to meet leading practitioners in their fields. The Faculty also offers practical support for career development. Students benefit from regular legal newsletters on latest career opportunities and topical issues, as well as workshops and individual advice sessions offered by experienced and knowledgeable practitioners. The overall training and support provided by the Faculty explains why our graduates are highly regarded by market leaders in the industry.

Whether you want to embark on a legal career or wish to commence a challenging yet fruitful exercise of intellectual pursuit - the JD Programme has my unqualified recommendation.

Barrister-at-law, Des Voeux Chambers

The JD Programme is demanding but rewarding, exposing students to the virtues and rigours of the common law system in Hong Kong. It was difficult starting from scratch in the law, but our professors have made it manageable by being supportive and dedicated in their teaching. I believe what makes the JD Programme special is its focus on preparing students for the challenges of professional life. I was also involved in two moot competitions. Mooting is an invaluable experience because you experience the life of a solicitor and a barrister in just a few months.

Shiu Lik King

JD (CUHK), PCLL (CUHK)

JD Gold Scholarship recipient (2014/15 & 2015/16)
Barrister-at-law, Wyndham Chambers

I am lucky to have chosen CUHK and its international faculty that fully respects students’ freedom of thought. The JD Programme is highly intense, making it a tough challenge but good preparation for a legal career.

It is not easy for someone who has worked more than ten years to pick up books again. But work and life experience help me appreciate the law from a different perspective. My own background in public service, for instance, allows me to look at constitutional and administrative law from a practical angle.

In this age, an understanding of the law is essential for everyone. It helps you distinguish the good tree from the bad tree. It is useful to people considering career changes or advancement, or purely for personal intellectual enrichment.

Justin Ho

JD (CUHK), PCLL (CUHK)
LLM (Harvard), BCL (Dist) (Oxford), BA (Tufts)

Barrister, Temple Chambers

The JD Programme gave me a very useful introduction and foundation to core substantive law topics. More importantly however, the JD Programme taught me to think and speak like a lawyer; the problem-solving skills and ability to construct logical, coherent arguments which were introduced to me at CUHK continue to be extremely useful to me today. Additionally, the opportunity to represent the Faculty as an oralist in international moot competitions has been invaluable in training me to respond to difficult questions put to me in argument with level-headed, precise answers.
