Academic Forum on Chinese Language and Culture

The Academic Forums on Chinese Language and Culture (AFCLC) provide opportunities for scholars and teaching professionals from key institutions world wide to cross-fertilize original ideas and dynamic thoughts in academic issues related to Chinese language and culture. These forums are held regularly at the CLC but one special forum sponsored by the Foundation is held each year during the International Students Festival.

Program Details

The aim of the Academic Forums on Chinese Language and Culture (AFCLC) is to provide a platform for the academia to share their innovative thoughts on issues related to Chinese language and culture. For a sample list of our Academic Forum activities, please check our web site at http://www.cuhk.edu.hk/clc/clc_seminar.pdf.

The Chinese Language and Culture (Hong Kong) Foundation

The Foundation, set up in 2004, aims to promote Chinese language and culture among students all over the world. With private donations and matching funds from institutions and governmental agencies, the foundation will eventually provide continuing support for programs and activities that serve its noble aim. The Chinese Language and Culture (Hong Kong) Foundation supports and implements program activities which facilitate continuing development of the Yale-China Chinese Language Centre (CLC) as part of the University.
