Description
The primary objective of this course is to investigate in depth the current issues in analysing financial statements of Chinese listed firms. It will focus on the analysis of the impact of institutional factors on financial statements, including accounting standard setting, auditing practice, legal and corporate governance, and stock market development. It will examine in depth managerial incentive in accounting choice and estimates. The course will also utilize modern tools and techniques of financial statement analysis through cases assignments and discussions in class. Prerequisite: ACY1112.
