

[Research Note]

Spatial Information System and Golden Bridge Engineering

Qi Li[§], Jicheng Cheng[§], and Shiwei Tang[†]

[§]The Institute of Remote Sensing and Geographic Information System

[†]The Center of Information Science

Peking University

Beijing, 100871, P. R. China

The development and integration of spatial information technology, computer technology and modern communication technology have made construction of global information network possible. The paper describes some of the key techniques on network-based spatial information system and principal contents in applied exemplar engineering. Through this project, we attempt to study the technical support for the construction of global information infrastructure.