Invites applications for the following programmes for admission in September 2015.

*Articulated M.Phil-Ph.D. Programme in Japanese Studies

*Master of Arts in Japanese Studies

Articulated M.Phil - Ph.D. Programme in Japanese Studies (F/T & P/T) (application deadline: 31 January 2015)

The Programme promotes the integration of teaching and research in Japanese studies at an advanced level. It aims to allow students to integrate different disciplinary and methodological approaches for the advancement of Japanese studies. The Programme will equip students with the necessary theoretical knowledge and research skills to allow intellectual development and critical scholarship on Japan, Japan-China and Japan-Hong Kong cultural studies. Graduates of the programme will have acquired broad-based knowledge of Japan as well as expertise in one of the following fields of specialization: anthropology of Japan, Japanese popular culture, Japanese linguistics, history of Sino-Japanese relations, Japan-Hong Kong relations, or Japanese intellectual history.

Master of Arts in Japanese Studies (P/T) (application deadline: 28 February 2015)

The MA in Japanese Studies offers postgraduate training in Japanese studies through multidisciplinary approach. The programme is designed to introduce contemporary perspectives of Japanese society, culture, and language to applicants with and without background in Japanese studies and related language training. The programme also serves professionals who have work, travel, or personal experiences in areas related to Japan, and who would like to gain conceptual and practical tools to deepen their understanding of Japanese culture and language. Japanese language proficiency is not required for the programme, but a few courses will be offered in Japanese for professionals interested in raising their Japanese language skills.
