(1) Reexamining Hong Kong Medical History under Japanese Occupation: Using HonKon Nippo (Hong Kong News) as the Main Reference

Speaker: Mr. Wai Shing LEE

This is a study of the medical history of Hong Kong under the Japanese occupation (1942-1945). Although there are plenty of books for general readers, memoirs of British troops and Chinese guerillas, and oral history records about the Japanese occupation in Hong Kong, this period has not yet received due academic treatment. Medical history of Hong Kong, as a part of socio-economic history, is relatively well-documented and researched. However, there is a missing link, namely the medical history during the Japanese occupation. Writings about medical condition in Hong Kong during this period are shattered and one-sidedly negative.

Based on Honkon Nippo, the representative newspaper published by the Japanese during the occupation period, and other primary sources, my study aims to examine the medical development of Hong Kong under the Japanese, highlighting the changes that the Japanese brought to Hong Kong and their impact on postwar Hong Kong medical history.

(2) 日中大学生が常用漢字に対する使用意識や習得実況調査——『改定常用漢字表』を中心に

Speaker: Ms. Hai Xia CHANG

『改定常用漢字表』は、1981年頒布された『常用漢字表』について見直した成果である。日本語母語話者及び中国人中上級日本語学習者は改定後の常用漢字表にある漢字を正しく使えるかということに注目し、筆者は香港中文大学で日本語学習者18名（うち、17名が日本語能力試験1級合格者）、本大学に留学している日本人大学生9名を対象に、アンケート調査を行った。
