Sharing from Felix, PhD Student Assistant, Global Regulatory Governance Conference:

From 4-6th July 2019, the GPA Department successfully hosted The International Conference on Global Regulatory Governance with over 200 delegates and scholars from 31 countries or regions attending. Over three days the participants had engaging and fruitful discussions in panels on a variety of issues related to regulatory governance, ranging from environmental governance to corruption prevention and regulation of AI. By inviting policymakers as well as Think Tank representatives, the conference also sought to connect academics and practitioners in an engaging way. The final discussion with some of the editors of leading journals in the field also proved to be interesting for all participants and clarified some of the challenges faced during the publication process. With such a great number of participants, the conference schedule also provided ample opportunities for a relaxed networking atmosphere as for example with the Gala Dinner on Friday night and the Harbour Cruise as the highlight of the week that marked a great conclusion of the conference.

Professor Kuan Hsin Chi - Reflections on GPA's Journey

I am proud of our Department, established in 1970 and named cautiously as Department of Government and Public Administration, to avoid the sensitive term “politics”. In the beginning, most teachers had a Taiwan background and our academic strength was in international relations. Today, we have become one of the best bastions in Asia, with all sub-fields of the discipline covered plus a healthy range of area studies.

As time goes by, the Department has grown from two teachers at start to a lineup of 16 devoted teachers. Their academic profiles exhibit solid and diverse training background, with 9 of them holding a PhD degree from top universities of the United States, 3 from the United Kingdom, three from local universities and one from Germany. I remember well and loved the frequent dining together in the old days. I admire my colleagues, who excel not only in research and teaching, but also in transformative nurturing our students. Working together, they have over the years cultivated a common, distinct characteristic of educational focus on “to be (a genuine human being)” instead of just “to have (e.g. knowledge, wealth etc.)”<sup>1</sup> For instance, Chow Po-chung suggests “to be yourself!”, Ma Ngok advocates that “The highest interest in learning is to be a man”, Li Wei urges our students to become Confucian “... man of perfect virtue, wishing to be established himself, seeks also to establish others...” While I urge students to strive “to be an authentic person” as touted in Max Weber’s “Politics as a Vocation”.

Does our teaching have any beneficial impact on our graduates? Definitely, as testified in a Wikipedia report on their accomplishments in different trades!<sup>2</sup>

Recent Event Highlights: The 3rd Empirical Political Science Research Workshop in Hong Kong

Mr. Felix Wiebrecht

PhD Year 2 Student, Department of Government and Public Administration, CUHK

Sharing from Felix, one of the participants from the EPS workshop.

On 10th May 2019 our GPA Department had the pleasure of hosting “The 3rd Empirical Political Science Research Workshop in Hong Kong” at the Universities Service Centre for China Studies. Participants saw stimulating presentations given by scholars from HKU, CityU, HKUST and the University of Macau on a wide range of topics. Among the speakers our department was represented by Prof. Jiang who invited comments and suggestions to a paper co-authored with PhD Student Zhang Zhiyuan.

Overall, the presented research led to interesting discussions about political science research and different methodological approaches in particular. All scholars received plentiful and valuable feedback and provided inspiration to members of the audience for future research directions. The workshop was also successful because it provided one of the rare forums for exchange of views and ideas in the broader political science community in Hong Kong. Therefore, special credit goes to Prof. Landry and Prof. Zhan who have facilitated the organization of the workshop. The next event of this series will be hosted by the University of Macau in 2020.

Research Talk:

In the past several months, Professor Wong has given talks on his working paper entitled, "Who Blinked? Performing Resolve (or Lack thereof) in Face-to-face Diplomacy" at several Asian universities: The University of Hong Kong, Seoul National University, and Fudan University.

Journal Article:

Wong, S.L. (2018). Mapping the Repertoire of Emotions and their Communicative Functions in Face-to-face Diplomacy, International Studies Review.

Abstract: Leaders who wish to resolve their disputes through face-to-face negotiations often find themselves in various relational problems. An invitation to talk might be sincere, but it can also be a scheme to exploit one's counterpart; a claim of value and threat to walk out unless certain demands are met might be serious, but it can also be a bluff; a claim that no further concessions is possible might be heartfelt, but it can also be an attempt to exaggerate one's "Reservation Price"; and an urge to commit to an agreement might be genuine, but it can also be a ploy to trick a counterpart into a deal one does not intend to honor. What, then, are the interpersonal mechanisms that enable leaders to credibly communicate their intentions? In this article, I identify the diverse repertoire of emotions that leaders exchange when they interact up close, explain the different relational problems they overcome, and, as such, shed light on how their expressions enable leaders with otherwise conflicting interests to proceed through the different stages of a negotiation. Empirically, I present a number of episodes of face-to-face diplomacy from recent history. I also discuss a number of promising topics for future research.

LI, W. and Wong, W. (Forthcoming). Advocacy Coalitions, Policy Stability, and Policy Change in China: The Case of Birth Control Policy, 1980–2015, Policy Studies Journal.

Abstract:

This study used the advocacy coalition framework (ACF) to explain stability and change in China's national birth control policy from 1980 to 2015. We found that policy remained stable, despite internal and external changes to the relevant subsystem, from 1980 to 2013. The stability was explained by the dominant advocacy coalition's mobilization of considerable resources to defend its policy core beliefs. Policy changes in 2013 and 2015 were caused by a combination of external and internal perturbations, in addition to policy-oriented learning and advocacy by two expert-led minority advocacy coalitions. The case showed that the openness and plurality of China's policy processes had increased over time but were still limited in comparison with those in Western democracies. The case analysis confirmed two policy change hypotheses and suggested a mechanism for policy change: a hierarchically superior jurisdiction is more likely to impose a major policy change when it learns that the change is an adaptation to internal and external perturbations and that adopting the change will serve the jurisdiction's political interests.

Jiang, J., Meng, T. and Zhang, Q. (2019). From Internet to Social Safety Net: The policy Consequences of Online Participation in China, Governance, Vol. 32(3), pp. 531-546.

Abstract:

Internet-based platforms are increasingly being used by governments around the world to facilitate public engagement with citizens. However, it remains an open question whether participation through these platforms can actually enable citizens to influence policies. We address this question by studying the patterns and consequences of online participation at a major electronic petition platform in China, a country with the world's largest Internet-using population. Content analysis of over 900,000 petitions reveals that a substantial share of them concern lower-class issues and are originated from less developed rural and suburban areas. Linking variations in petition volumes to an original data set of government policy priorities, we further show that online participation led governments to place greater emphasis on social welfare policies and to increase the coverage of a key low-income assistance program. These results underscore the potential of online participation as an important mechanism to improve the quality of governance.

Mr. Ryuta Hagiwara

It is our pleasure to invite Mr. Ryuta Hagiwara, a visiting PhD student from Japan to share his research experience in the GPA Department and his research in CUHK as well as Hong Kong.

I am honored to be invited to write a column section for the first edition of the Biannual Newsletter for Department of GPA in 2019. I obtained my B.A in Education from Tokyo Gakugei University, and my M.A in LAW from Hitotsubashi University in Japan. Currently I am a PhD student at Hitotsubashi. In 2019, I am a visiting PhD student affiliated to the Department of GPA, where I conduct my research on the Basic Law and the rule of law in Hong Kong.

My exchange studies at CUHK in 2013-14 sparked my interest in Hong Kong's political and legal studies. At the eve of Occupy Central Movement, I witnessed mass civil deliberation and political mobilization during my stay in Hong Kong society. The relation between social movement and democracy in Hong Kong really intrigued me. After enrolling into graduate school, I analyzed the implementation of the "one country two systems" in Hong Kong based on frictional contacts between Common law and Chinese law in the Basic Law which led to controversies regarding Basic Law's interpretations.

During my stay in CUHK, I usually stayed in the office or library to conduct research or compose articles about law and politics of Hong Kong, including the recently published "The infiltration of 依法治国 in Hong Kong : Through the 人大釋法 and DQ 風波". I also attended classes and seminars or take part in public forums that discusses about legal and political problems in Hong Kong. They have all helped to invigorate and expand the scope of my research. Half of my stay in Hong Kong has passed, so please feel free to talk to me and I am looking forward to discussions with my favorite Hong Kong craft beer.

資料來源：第4頁「香港企業可持續發展指數」

香港中文大學商學院商業可持續發展中心 (CBS) 公布第4屆「香港企業可持續發展指數」，結果顯示本港上市公司履行「企業社會責任」(Corporate Social Responsibility, CSR) 之外，亦開始關注後遺影響。

50間恒生指數成分股公司（截至2018年6月為止）的總平均分連續三屆錄得上升，今年指數為56.01分（總分100分），較去年指數上升10.21%。

公司履社會責任 煤氣表現佳

CBS 邀請以上50間公司於網上完成問卷評估，並根據公司的公開資料，填寫其截至2017/18年履社會責任的表現，主要涉及3大範疇：企業價值觀、履行責任履程（管理層和資源）及影響。

今年3大範疇都有改善，價值觀表現最佳，平均分達66.34，按年升6.34%，影響一環平均分最低，僅有39.23，卻錄得最大增長，按年升20.37%。CBS 總監盧永鴻表示，整體指數上升反映企業開始優化管理架構，並由價值觀及影響受最大正面影響，因訂立企業願景往往最容易，但原來多公司在推行項目後檢討或評估成效，「不少公司成立數據庫，除了供內部分析使用，反映是否有效管理，亦讓持份者了解新政策的影響。」

此外，香港中華煤氣有限公司連續兩屆，是總得分最高平均分超過90的公司。盧永鴻稱，中華煤氣近年相當重視：「管理層的CSR參與率及執行力高，推動員工做得更好。公司如果只視CSR為公關工作，而忽略其正面商業價值的話，則難真正訂下持續發展策略。」

倡政府重新審視 判上判漏判

實踐方面計算持份者利益，投資者當配，今年平均分78.89，大權從前屆隨其後的員工(66.5)、客戶(64.78)。盧永鴻表示，上市公司始終最關心股東反應，履行CSR時往往着重價值，而其供應商及政府這兩個持份者的配合最弱。

「企業與多包商很多時候合作只考慮價錢問題，但價值並非CSR的實踐，承包制度問題嚴重，難以確保化項的應得報酬與工作量。」他建議，政府宜重新審視判上判的系統性漏洞。

至於24間香港上市公司，總平均分64.22，按年升7.02%；26間非香港企業，總平均分為48.44，按年升14.43%。盧永鴻稱，內企升幅大，源於起步較低，但隨著港交所要求披露環境、社會和管理報告，加上內企與國際合作夥伴接軌及建立品牌知名度，在CSR發展上亦愈趨先進。

盧永鴻續言，CSR傳統定位是一項成本，但新標準要求，如果公司未能建立社會價值，只靠盲目辦幾項活動，遲早遭淘汰。企業亦要兼顧所有持份者利益，避免引發企業風險及營運危機。

可持續發展指數 港鐵為何排第3?

香港企業可持續發展指數出爐，結果顯示香港地鐵有限公司（港鐵）在50間恒指成分股公司之中，履行企業社會責任 (CSR) 整體表現不俗，排名第3。

負責調查的香港中文大學商學院商業可持續發展中心總監盧永鴻稱，評估港鐵表現時，已計算其負面新聞及影響，惟目前港鐵正面新聞站尚未開通，對投資者、供應商及乘客影響有限，各方面不可能減至0分。

此外，港鐵雖然服務有誤，但仍具備全球首屈一指的安全、可靠鐵路系統，該套系統回報率高，員工待遇尚可，又提倡節能減排，杜強勁，如果未來港鐵推人財兩難，或會受投資者之期，不作評估。

不少評論預測今年全球經濟增長放緩，港鐵的經濟是上市公司投資CSR的最佳時機，「這時發展CSR成本相對低，建立長遠系統有利加快回報。」

Undergraduate Updates

Sharing about the exchange at University of Warwick

Miss Ice Chan Wai Yan

Undergraduate Year 4 Student

Department of Government and Public Administration, CUHK

This year I had the honor to be an exchange student at the University of Warwick in the United Kingdom. I studied the politics of gender, economics, money and the history of the Parliament in England. These are modules that I do not have a chance to study in Hong Kong. Therefore, taking these courses really helped me broadening my horizon, and extend my research interest in politics. I hope I can bring what I learnt to Hong Kong and apply new thinking perspectives in my future study as well.

In addition, I am extremely glad to have had regular talks directly with my course teacher. We had seminars every week and essay discussion at the end of each semester. Having talks with them allows me to know more about what they really want me to do in specific modules, and therefore it encourages me to do better in respective essays and exams. Moreover, there is a personal tutor assigned for every student, which allows students to have meetings to update their university life with them.

It is a wonderful experience to stay and study in Coventry, United Kingdom. I hope I can have a chance to go back here and enjoy the study atmosphere once again.
