INTRODUCTION

Since its establishment in September 1990, the Hong Kong Institute of Asia-Pacific Studies (hereafter, the Institute or HKIAPS) has been promoting and coordinating interdisciplinary studies on Hong Kong and neighbouring Asian societies within the Asia-Pacific region. The Institute aims to serve as a bridge between overseas scholars in Asia-Pacific studies and teaching and research staff at The Chinese University of Hong Kong (hereafter, the Chinese University or CUHK).

The Institute supports two major types of research activities: individual projects funded by or affiliated with the Institute and long-term interdisciplinary research programmes that constitute the backbone of the activities of the Institute. The latter activities are described at length in the following pages, while the former will be mentioned in particular sections of individual programme reports.

For additional information, the Institute's website can be accessed at the following location:

MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR

The Institute has come a long way since its inception two decades ago. Today the Institute has become a reputable knowledge hub of social science research in Hong Kong and the Asia-Pacific region. Findings of our ongoing research on social, political and economic development of Hong Kong, Mainland China and the region are disseminated extensively across the intellectual community. We collaborate closely with policy-makers in the public and private sectors to provide scientific and evidence-based input to inform policy analyses and decisions. To promote scholarly exchange, the Institute organizes academic and public events regularly.

Last year has been eventful for the Institute once again as we celebrated the 20th anniversary of the Institute. During the reporting period, 98 conferences, symposia, seminars and workshops were organized, addressing issues such as Hong Kong constitutional reform, Chinese legal culture, future development of Hong Kong and Shanghai, strengthening of Hong Kong's families, globalization and family changes, Asian GDP and trade, civil society practices, gender equality and sexual violence.

The Institute celebrated its 20th Anniversary with two important events. An International Conference on “Health Care Reform: Asia-Pacific Experiences and Western Models” was held in March 2011 with a focus on public policy, managerial and financial dimensions. The Conference examines how countries in Asia-Pacific learn Western models of healthcare reform, financing models and strategies for meeting the difficulties ahead and compares the experiences of successes and challenges of different countries throughout the Asia-Pacific region. Edited conference papers will be published as the Second Issue of our Asia-Pacific in the 21st Century Book Series. There were more than 150 audiences joining the 3-day Conference.

A Public Forum on Social Indicators and Datasets was held in May 2011. Utilizing the social and economic indicators compiled by the Institute, and with information collected from public sources, nine representatives from the research centres and programmes of the Institute shared their research insights in regard to demography, family, gender development, governance, economy, and regional cooperation of Hong Kong in the past decades. The Forum drew over 150 participants from tertiary institutions, government, NGOs, think-tanks, and the private sectors.

To celebrate 20th anniversary, HKIAPS at 20 was published to highlight the accomplishments of the Institute in the past five years. It shows our progress and the path we have been through over the years. The Institute is now ranked as one of the most productive and influential knowledge research hubs for social science in the Asia-Pacific region. Entering its third decade, the Institute will play a stronger role in facilitating interdisciplinary research on timely issues that inform social policies.

The Telephone Survey Research Laboratory, which conducts quality surveys to facilitate academic research of our university colleagues and opinion polls for the local community, conducted 65 telephone and household surveys during the reporting period. The survey results were released regularly to raise public awareness on social issues and to reflect public opinions. The Publication Unit, another core service function of the Institute, has published 5 monographs, 6 occasional papers and 1 publication under public policy forum series last year.

The contributions of the Research Centres and Programmes to the Institute's collective accomplishment in the past year are described in the ensuing individual reports. Here, I would like to express my sincere gratitude and appreciation to the Management Committee and all our colleagues in the Institute. Their passion, commitment, professionalism and excellent teamwork are most invaluable to the development of the Institute. I am particularly grateful for our four Associate Directors, Professors Stephen W. K. Chiu, Sung Yun-wing, Wong Chack-kie and Timothy K. Y. Wong. Their unwavering support which are paramount for the smooth transition of the directorship early this year.

For strategic planning, we have reviewed the research landscape within the Chinese University as well as in Hong Kong, Mainland China and the Asia-Pacific region since the establishment of the Institute twenty years ago. We have made a number of structural changes to consolidate our strategic position and directions in achieving its mission and objectives.

First, The Institute will extend its service in providing training courses for different organizations in the Greater China and Asia-Pacific region. The programme aims to provide training in public administration to participants with reference to Hong Kong examples in socioeconomic system, social service, and corporate management, etc. The Institute will liaise with leading academic, political and business figures to providing lectures, sharing seminars, workshops, and visits for the participants with a view of promoting exchange with participants on the Hong Kong experience.

Second, with the increasing demand for high quality telephone surveys and rapid advancement of technology, Telephone Survey Research Laboratory will review these new advances and expectations. The Institute will evaluate the role of the Telephone Survey Research Laboratory with a view of exploring the capacity to incorporate modern information technology to conduct state-of-the-art opinion polls.

Third, the Institute, via its Research Centres and Programmes, will host international conferences, and facilitate collaborative research projects with renowned academia in Greater China and regional partners.

Finally, the Institute will continue with ongoing research projects, initiate new ones to promoting multidisciplinary research on social, political and economic development of Hong Kong, mainland China, and Asia-Pacific region; to promote academic exchange; to disseminate research findings; and to assist in the preparation of Public Policy Research Grants in Social Science.

I wish to take this opportunity to recognize all our current and former colleagues for their contributions to our accomplishments in the past twenty years. With our sustained and concerted efforts, I have every confidence that the Institute will build on our strength to make even greater strides in promoting evidence-based knowledge to serve the society.

Background

The Centre for Civil Society Studies was established in February 2008 under Hong Kong Institute of Asia-Pacific Studies at CUHK. This report will introduce our centre and the activities held from August 2010 to July 2011.

Objectives

The mission of the centre is to enhance the development of civil society in Chinese societies through research and education. In particular, our centre has four objectives:

1. To provide database support for conducting academic and consultancy research on civil society in Chinese societies, including mainland China, Hong Kong, Taiwan and Macau;
2. To promote public awareness and disseminate advanced knowledge of civil society through educational programs and other academic activities;
3. To facilitate cooperation across sectors by building a network of academic institutes, governments, business and NGOs in the region;
4. To enhance innovation in public policy making by promoting the importance of civil society in good governance.

The centre has recruited six staff, including an administrative team (Wang Yong, Lam Ping Cheong and Chu Juan), one research associate (Dr. Terence Yuen) and three research assistants (Kwok Wing Feng, Donna Cheung and Guo Na), and is in the process of recruiting more supporting staff.

Research – Database Construction

CCSS was established in early 2008 with a three-year grant from the University's Focused Investment Scheme as one of the research units in the University to promote China studies. Its research plan called for the construction of a number of civil society databases including 1) the NGO Archives, 2) the Civil Society Opinion Survey Datasets, and 3) the Collective Action Database.

The research efforts came into fruition this year with the conclusion of the initial phase of the database research projects in early 2011. The Centre compiled a three-year evaluation report in February and presented the findings to a Visiting Committee comprising external evaluators Professor Peter Bol and Professor Michael Puett from Harvard University. The research outputs and outcomes, outlined below, received high praise from members of the Visiting Committee.

- i. NGO Archives: Over 260 grassroots NGOs in China have been surveyed and covered in this database. While other NGO listings may be maintained by academic institutes or grantmaking foundations, the NGO Archives is the first comprehensive dataset that is meant for facilitating researchers to undertake quantitative and in-depth qualitative research onto different facets of the operation of these grassroots groups many of which are unable to register as “social/nonprofit organizations” due to restrictive legal provisions, and yet they are actually playing a significant role as an integral part of civil society in China. This database with in-depth information about NGOs is essential in illuminating the potential of the civil society development in China.

- ii. Civil Society Opinion Survey Datasets: Five telephone polls were conducted during the year which represent the first wave of research data for the civil society public opinion database. The standardized survey instrument contains 30 plus questions and over one thousand successful interviews were conducted in each research location, covering Beijing, Guangzhou, Hong Kong, Kunming and Taipei. All data are coded in a systematic manner using a unified database structure which will be opened for use by the wider research communities interested in comparing civil society development (e.g. level of civic engagement, volunteering and giving, political participation, etc.) using survey data.
- iii. Collective Action Database: With over 1700 cases documented (for incidents happened during the period from January 2008 to March 2010), the database is now ready for use by researchers and students interested in analyzing protests and incidents of collective violence. Information concerning basic descriptions and nature of events, number of people involved, the outcomes of the events, etc. are covered in the data set. Drawing on information from the database, an ensuing inquiry was conducted to identify the commonly used strategies of staging collective violence under different circumstances, such as staging “road blockage” as a popular strategy despite the risk of suppression from government. Additionally, the research team also set out to unveil correlations of key variables contained in the dataset including the frequency, nature, intensity and geographical distribution of collective actions taken place in recent years.

Education - Visiting Fellows Program for Civil Society Stakeholders

The centre has launched visiting fellow programs for selected groups of civil society stakeholders in Mainland China to attend workshops, seminars and conduct field study in Hong Kong since 2008. Specifically, the proposed visitor program has three objectives:

- i) to provide opportunities for stakeholders of civil society in China to learn the cutting edge development of civil society in promoting social innovation and good governance;

- ii) to help these stakeholders gain first-hand experience in NPO management;
- iii) to create a network of civil society stakeholders within and outside the government in China.

A. Southern China Visiting Fellows Program

From August 2010 to July 2011, a total of four strategic groups of participants are invited to join the program. As in the previous year, they include the senior staff of “civil society support organizations” such as volunteer training institute, officials in Civil Affairs departments and other related authorities, as well as scholars involved in teaching and research of civil society/social welfare. Besides, outstanding journalists and entrepreneurs are invited as they both play role in fostering civil society in China.

In the period, the centre hosted 27 visitors. Over a period of three years, the centre has hosted 78 visitors; the period of each visit lasts from two to four weeks. Visiting fellows attended workshops, seminars, site visiting and short-term internship as well as conducted independent research.

The centre has magnificent breakthrough in establishing network of civil society stakeholders in this year. Since July 2010, our centre has supported partners in Guangzhou to hold “Delighted Dialogue”. It is a salon that functions as a platform for NGO, media, foundation, artists, musicians, etc to exchange opinions for a topic. The topics are always innovative which vary from “stories of migrant workers” to “how can music change the world”. In 2011, another NGO platform named “Yunnan NGOers Club” was established and arranges regular meetings and activities.

B. One Foundation Visiting Fellows Program

NGOs awarded Philanthropy Grant or Potential Philanthropy Stars by the One Foundation in 2008 and 2009, as well as selected NGOs in North China are invited to join the program. Similar to the Southern China Visiting Fellows Program, each organization will nominate 2-3 senior staff to join the program. Besides, building a team of senior staff with civil society knowledge is one of the characteristics of this program. Kicked off in Jan 2010, the centre has hosted 56 visitors in total for this program.

C. Sending visiting fellows to Taiwan

The centre has developed partnership with some universities, foundations and NGOs in Taiwan, including National Central University, Lung Yingtai Cultural Foundation, Dharma Drum Mountain, Cardinal Tien Cultural Foundation, Frontier Foundation (Taiwan), Taichung City Hondao Senior Citizen's Welfare Foundation, Republic of China (Taiwan) Hondao Volunteer Association and New Homeland Foundation. In June 2011, 8 visiting fellows were selected to visit Taiwan for a week. They attended seminars and delivered speeches, visited NGOs in city and countryside, closely observing the vigour of civil society in Taiwan.

As a whole, the centre hosted 70 visiting fellows from August 2010 to July 2011.

Seminars

The centre has organized 60 seminars or Civil Society Salons, some of which were co-organized with the CUHK Universities Service Centre for China Studies. The seminars covered a wide range of topics from NGO practices to civil society theories and were able to arouse heated discussion among the audience who were usually students, scholars and NGO leaders.

Policy Advisory and Applied Research Projects

Over the past few years, through its efforts to promote civil society development in China, the Centre has built strong ties with seasoned researchers and nonprofit practitioners in the Mainland and across the region. The regional research network so developed is a valuable asset in allowing research institutes to collaborate and further research agendas of common interests.

Our researchers were constantly being invited to academic and practitioners' conferences on topics related to philanthropy and civil society studies. The Centre also maintained close ties with major nonprofit research institutes and government executive bodies in charge of the promotion of philanthropy and nonprofit organizations in China, including the China Charity and Donation Information Center, the China Charity Development Center, and the One Foundation Philanthropy Research Institute.

- i. Philanthropy and Nonprofit Education in China: In November, the Centre participated in a major philanthropy forum in Beijing with the conference theme The Future of Philanthropy Education in China. The forum was organized by the newly established One Foundation Philanthropy Research Institute at Beijing Normal University. A paper titled “Philanthropic Education: International Experiences and Applications in China” was compiled and presented in the forum. The collection of papers presented in the forum will be converted into a publication which serves to envision the development of philanthropy education in China in the years to come.
- ii. The Philanthropy Index Project: Our Centre has been involved in ongoing discussions with the China Charity and Donation Information Center (CCDIC) under the Ministry of Civil Affairs (MoCA), and serves as its external adviser in an effort to systemize the production of official nonprofit statistics and in the development of a new National Charity Information System. With direct inputs provided by our Centre, a composite “Philanthropy Index” comprising five activity domains was conceptualized and its compilation piloted in selective cities in China. It is the plan of the government, under the national 12th Five-Year Plan, to push for implementation of the Index in all major cities in China.
- iii. The Philanthropy Supermarket Project: Since late 2010, CCSS was also consulted by the China Charity Development Center (CCDC) on a project titled “Reinvigoration of Philanthropic Supermarkets” which involves the development of a new service system that would link up 227 charity supermarkets and 1,429 community donation centres in Beijing, with a plan to establish a national system of charity stores and community donation centres across the country’s vast territory. This CCDC Project, also part of the 12th Five-Year Plan under the purview of MoCA, is another flagship project involving huge investment from both central and provincial/local governments. Through active involvement in the project, CCSS would be able to gain further insights into how the charity information system in China would work at the grassroots level to assemble source data on civil society statistics such as giving and volunteering.
- iv. The 2011 Blue Book on Philanthropy: At the invitation of the editor of the official blue book on philanthropy, an annual publication in the Mainland to document happenings in the field of philanthropy over the previous year, a chapter was compiled with the title “Philanthropy Development in Hong Kong: In Search of Improved Cross-Sectoral Collaboration,” which documents major happenings in Hong Kong in the philanthropy field in 2010, including controversies surrounding the proposed Charity Law in Hong Kong, the establishment of the Community Care Fund by the Hong Kong SAR Government, and latest developments on social enterprises and impact investing in Hong Kong.

- v. Research on Social Enterprise Development: A research paper “An Overview of Social Enterprise Development in China and Hong Kong” was compiled for the panel on Possibilities of Civil Society in East Asia at the International Conference on East Asia in Transition. The event was a meeting of civil society and area study scholars originally scheduled for March 2011 at Ritsumeikan University at Kyoto, Japan. The meeting was subsequently postponed to 2012 in the aftermath of the devastating Tōhoku earthquake and tsunami. The paper has been translated into Japanese and will be published in both English and Japanese in 2012 following the conference presentation.

Funding

The centre received HK$ 2 millions from the university as a project in the Chinese Studies as Major Area (CSMA) for a period of three years (2008 – 2011) to construct the database. In this period, an extra fund of HK$141,500 has been allocated to continue the research projects. The centre has also been granted two donations for our visiting fellows programme by Rockefeller Brothers Fund, a lump sum of US$ 200,000 for a period of two years (2010 - 2012) and Jet Li One Foundation, HKD 733,148.50 for one year (2010) respectively, and is building up collaboration with more grantmakers

Centre for Quality of Life

Director: Prof. NG Sai-leung

Objectives

The Programme was designed to promote scholarly research on issues of quality of life in the world in general and Hong Kong in particular through cross-disciplinary research, academic exchange activities, and cross-institutional collaboration. Besides, the Centre is committed to produce knowledge on quality of life that contributes to social service development, policy formulations and promotion of the quality of life of people in Hong Kong.

Committee

Members of the Committee included Prof. Ng Sai-leung (Director), Prof. Paul S. N. Lee (Dean of Faculty of Social Science), Prof. Terence Chong Tai-leung (Economics), Prof. Sunny Kwong (Economics), Prof. Ma Ngok (Government and Public Administration), Prof. Ng Kai-hon (Government and Public Administration), Prof. Winnie Mak (Psychology), Prof. Ting Kwok-fai (Sociology) and Prof. Tsou Jin Yeu (Architecture).

Research Activities

During the year, the Centre continued with the longitudinal study of the CUHK Hong Kong Quality of Life Index (QoL Index). Incorporating the effort and expertise of faculty members from different disciplines, the Faculty of Social Science has compiled the QoL Index since 2002. Starting from 2003, the Index is updated and released annually.

The QoL Index is developed to address the following objectives:

- (1) To measure and monitor the quality of life in Hong Kong in the 21st century;
- (2) To engage relevant parties in promoting the quality of life in Hong Kong;
- (3) To provide policy-makers and the community with useful statistics on the quality of life in Hong Kong; and
- (4) To advocate the quality of life in Hong Kong and draw public attention to the issue of quality of life.

The QoL Index is a composite index. It consists of 21 indicators that are grouped into three subgroups, including Social, Economic and Environmental sub-indexes. Among the 21 indicators, six are compiled by the Centre, based on data collected by surveys conducted by the Hong Kong Institute of Asia-Pacific Studies of the University. These indicators are stress index, general life satisfaction index, press freedom index, press criticism index, government performance index and index of current economic conditions. All other indices are obtained from the government and related institutions. The Centre has successfully obtained a Direct Grant of HK$77,880 to support the QoL Index research in 2010/11.

A telephone survey was conducted in August 2010 to collect data on the four indicators of the Socio-Cultural Sub-index, viz. stress index, general life satisfaction index, press freedom index, and government performance index.

In addition, the Centre conducted the following four surveys to gauge public attitudes towards Hong Kong's economic conditions in 2010/11 :

- ◆ Survey on "Public Attitudes towards Economic Conditions" (September 2010)
- ◆ Survey on "Public Attitudes towards Economic Conditions" (December 2010)
- ◆ Survey on "Public Attitudes towards Economic Conditions" (March 2011)
- ◆ Survey on "Public Attitudes towards Economic Conditions" (June 2011)

Based on these surveys, the Indices of Consumer Confidence, Consumer Sentiment and Employment Confidence are compiled every quarterly and the results are released on the Centre's website at <http://www2.cuhk.edu.hk/ssc/qol/eng/index.php>. The Centre has been requested by organizations such as Bloomberg and Thomson Reuters to provide them with the latest survey results on a continuous basis.

For consultancy service, Prof. Ng Sai Leung was commissioned by the North District Council to conduct evaluation studies on the bus and mini-bus services in North District.

Press Conference

A press conference was held on 3 August 2010 to disseminate the findings on the Hong Kong Quality of Life Index 2009 to the general public and scholarly community. The press conference attracted 14 media organizations to report the research findings.

The report on the findings of the Hong Kong Quality of Life Index 2009 were sent to more than 80 government bureaus/departments, major NGOs and tertiary institutions after the press conference.

Its concrete objectives include:

The Social Indicators and Social Development of Hong Kong Programme, with Ms WAN Po-san as the Director, is housed under the Centre. The Programme focuses on measuring and studying social developments in Hong Kong. Its prime purpose is to build up a comprehensive system of social indicators, i.e., a set of longitudinal data on the subjective and objective dimensions of social conditions and social changes, for Hong Kong.

Research Activities

The highlights of the main activities undertaken during the past year are given below:

1. “A Comparative Study of the Social Image of Taiwan and Hong Kong”

CUHK team: Ms Wan Po-san and Prof. Timothy K. Y. Wong

Taiwan team: Prof. Chang Ying-hwa, Prof. Chiu Hei-yuan, Prof. Fu Yang-chih, Prof. H. H. Michael Hsiao, and Prof. Yi Chin-chun

This project is being conducted in collaboration with the Institute of Sociology of the Academia Sinica. A telephone opinion survey is conducted simultaneously in Hong Kong and Taiwan once or twice a year using a common questionnaire to gauge the perceptions, values, and subjective well-being of the people of both societies. The core questions of the questionnaire are kept unchanged as far as possible to facilitate the detection of social trends and changes, while questions on special topics are flexible enough to reflect changes in social conditions. The twelfth survey, which focused on subjective well-being, socio-political trust, and social problems, was carried out in December 2010. The fourth book, Interpreting the Social Ethos of Taiwan and Hong Kong, was published in February 2011.

2. “A Study on an Investigation of the Perception of Social Justice across Social Groups”

by Prof. Winton Au and Prof. Tao Lin

This study has been commissioned by the Central Policy Unit of the Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region. The aim of the study is to identify issues that the community perceives as unjust and the reasons for this perception, by identifying the social groups that are experiencing injustice and understanding the issues that they are facing, and determining why they think there is injustice in these issues. The study will also endeavour to gauge the opinions of the general public about what the government and the society could do to rectify injustice in the long term. A media analysis, a territory-wide telephone opinion survey, and focus group interviews will be conducted.

3. “An Assessment of Hong Kong’s Subjective Social Risk 2009-10”

by Prof. Timothy K. Y. Wong and Ms Wan Po-san

This study was commissioned by the Central Policy Unit of the Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region. The aim was to assess the subjective social risk of Hong Kong through quantitative analyses of the findings of a series of six bi-monthly telephone opinion surveys. The final report was submitted in September 2010.

4. “An Exploratory Study of the Relationship between Subjective Societal Experiences and Changing Patterns of Narcotic Abuse among Adolescents in Hong Kong” coordinated by Dr Lee King-wa, Prof. Law Chi-kin, and Dr Chan Ching-yee

This project is funded by a CUHK direct grant. It aims to address the following three objectives on adolescent drug abusers in Hong Kong: (1) changing reasons for taking drugs; (2) the relationship between drugs and crime; and (3) displacement. The study involves in-depth interviews conducted with high-risk adolescents referred to us by our community partners (e.g., St. James' Settlement) and attempts to relate their boredom/depression/anxiety, curiosity, or perception of peer influence to their ongoing subjective societal experiences.

5. “An Intergenerational Study on Work Values and Continuous Learning”

by Prof. Winton Au and Ms Emily Ho

This project aims to understand intergenerational differences in work values, their impact on continuous learning, and the relationship between value congruence and the motivation to learn in Hong Kong. A territory-wide telephone opinion survey was conducted in September 2010.

6. “Changes in Factors Contributing to the Co-residence of Adult Children with Their Elderly Parents in Hong Kong from 1981-2006 and Their Impact on Policies on Elderly Care” coordinated by Prof. Law Chi-kin

This project is funded by a CUHK direct grant. It aims to re-examine the potential contribution to elderly care of the co-residence of elderly people and their adult children. “Four generations under one roof” has traditionally been regarded as a sign of felicity for the elderly, as family members are supposed to take good care of their elders. Intergenerational co-residence has been emphasized in the government's policy on elderly care in Hong Kong. The study investigates patterns of transition in co-residence between adult children and their elderly parents, to explore the relationship between changes in socio-demographic factors and living arrangements by analyzing the sampled datasets of population censuses and by-censuses from 1981 to 2006.

7. “Citizen Politics in Hong Kong: Social Membership and Political Participation by Prof. Timothy K. Y. Wong (principal investigator), Prof. Kuan Hsin-chi, and Ms Wan Po-san

This project is funded by a General Research Fund from the Research Grants Council. It focuses on the current state of citizenship awareness and political participation after ten years of gradual democratization and national reunification since 1997. A territory-wide household survey was launched in May 2009 to delineate patterns of citizenship orientations and practice in Hong Kong.

8. “Hong Kong Contemporary History Research Project”

by Prof. Simon X. H. Shen

The aim of this project is to revisit the 1967 Riots in Hong Kong comprehensively and objectively from both local and international perspectives. The plan is to incorporate different points of view by conducting various interviews with those who were involved in the Riots, and reviewing the decision-making agendas and policy considerations at the governmental level by drawing from historical archives. Two books will be written. One will adopt a local perspective and primarily focus on evaluating the importance of the Riots in shaping the socio-political development of Hong Kong. The other, which will analyze events from an international perspective, will centre on the involvement of different countries and the dynamics of the Riots.

9. “Legislative Council By-election and Party Politics in Hong Kong 2010”

by Prof. Li Lianjiang

This project aims to delineate the voting behaviour of Hong Kong people in the 2010 Legislative Council By-election and their impressions of various political parties after the event. A territory-wide telephone opinion survey was conducted from the end of May to early June of 2010.

10. “Public Attitudes towards the 2012 Chief Executive Election”

by Prof. Fanny M. Cheung and Ms Wan Po-san

The 2007 decision of the Standing Committee of the National People’s Congress that the Chief Executive may be elected by universal suffrage in 2017 represents a critical stage of constitutional development. Although the electoral method is to be determined, this decision has elevated the importance of the 2012 election in the eyes of both politicians and the general public. The aim of this project is to identify the public's policy expectations of the next Chief Executive, voting criteria, and support for potential candidates. A series of territory-wide telephone opinion surveys will be conducted before and after the election.

11. "Public Perception of Government-Business Relations in Hong Kong"

by Prof. Victor Zheng and Ms Wan Po-san

This project aims to study public perceptions of government-business relations and to compare the results with those of a similar study conducted in 2006. A territory-wide telephone opinion survey was conducted in July 2011.

12. "Public Perception of Income Inequality and Governance in Hong Kong"

by Prof. Wong Chack-kie and Ms Wan Po-san

The aim of this project is to explore public perceptions of income inequality and governance, and to examine the relationships between the two. A territory-wide telephone opinion survey was conducted in March 2011.

13. "Public Perceptions of Major Themes Significant to Social Policy and Governance Efficacy in Hong Kong"

by Prof. Wong Chack-kie

Determining public perceptions of a few major themes pertaining to social policy and governance efficacy in Hong Kong is the aim of this project. Four territory-wide telephone opinion surveys were conducted to delineate Hong Kong people's perceptions of social welfare, social harmony, and governance.

14. "The Sixth Phase of the Study on the Quality of Life in Macao 2010"

This study was commissioned by the Research Centre for Sustainable Development Strategies of the Government of the Macao Special Administrative Region and was being conducted in collaboration with the Centre of Asian Studies of The University of Hong Kong. The members of the CUHK team include Prof. Fanny M. Cheung (coordinator), Ms Wan Po-san, Prof. Wong Chack-kie, and Prof. Timothy K. Y. Wong. Five telephone opinion surveys, which focused on government policies and governance, income disparity, regional cooperation and cross-boundary interaction, young people's attitudes towards study and employment, and the quality of life, respectively, were conducted in June and July 2010.

The final report was submitted in November 2010.

15. “The Seventh Phase of the Study on the Quality of Life in Macao 2011”

This study has been commissioned by the Macao Foundation. The members of the Hong Kong team include Prof. Fanny M. Cheung (coordinator), Prof. Wong Siu-lun (coordinator), Ms Wan Po-san, Prof. Victor Zheng, Prof. Mok Ka-ho, Prof. Wong Chack-kie, and Prof. Kenneth W. K. Law. Policy briefs on diversifying the development of industry, regional collaboration, democratic development and governance, civic associations and civil society, education, and social security are being prepared. Six policy forums focusing on the above topics will be held. A telephone opinion survey on the quality of life will be conducted.

16. “Voting Behaviour in the 2011 District Council Election”

by Prof. Fanny M. Cheung and Ms Wan Po-san

The fourth District Council ordinary election will be held on 6 November 2011. The new District Council Functional Constituency (DCFC) election method will be implemented to return five additional Legislative Council seats. DCFC candidates, limited to elected DC members nominated by elected DC members, will be elected by all registered electors except those already entitled to vote in other functional constituencies. The forthcoming election is thus regarded as a new battlefield for Legislative Council seats. Based on the consideration of the specific political-institutional context within which the election will be held, three territory-wide telephone opinion surveys will be conducted before and after the election to study the pattern of voting and non-voting behaviour, the different orientations among the electorate in their choice of candidates, and the impact of the DCFC election method on voting behaviour.

17. “Work-family Conflicts, Family Leisure, and Family Functioning in Hong Kong”

by Dr Lau Yuk-king, Prof. Ma Lai-chong, Ms Wan Po-san, and Prof. Timothy K. Y. Wong

The aims of this project are to identify risks and protective factors in family functioning in Hong Kong and to formulate social strategies to strengthen Hong Kong families. A territory-wide telephone opinion survey was conducted in November 2010 to assess the protective function of family leisure on family functioning, to examine its significance in comparison with other family time-use patterns, such as housework and caring for the family, and to explore the significant barriers in Hong Kong to enhancing the amount and quality of family time.

Objectives

The objective of the Programme is to foster and support academic research on China by providing grants. Through the dissemination of research findings, the Programme helps to provide useful references for the formulation of public policies.

Regionally, the grants now cover studies on Hong Kong, mainland China, and the area's interrelated development with Macao, Taiwan, and other parts of the world. Individual research, interdisciplinary collaboration, and research partnerships across and outside of the Asia-Pacific region are equally considered.

The Programme is not limited to funding projects of any particular disciplines or topics, innovative research with relevance to China is all welcome. The current research areas supported include:

- (1) development of the mainland China Hong Kong nexus;

Newly Funded Projects:

Seven projects were supported between August 2010 and July 2011.

1. “Chinese NGOs as Incubators of Democratic Culture?”

Conducted by Prof. Anthony J. Spires (Department of Sociology) as principal investigator. HK$90,000 was awarded in 2010.

This project aims to study the internal organizational culture of China’s emergent non-governmental organizations (NGOs) by drawing on comparative case studies in two different types of NGOs – professionalized groups mainly run by paid staff and volunteer-based social service delivery NGOs. The study will elucidate the links between organizational culture and organizational structure, so as to shed light on the role of NGOs to help foster a democratic organizational culture in an authoritarian state.

2. “Health Inequality and Noncognitive Human Capital: A Comparative Study of Adults in the Pearl River Delta, Hong Kong, and Taiwan”

Conducted by Prof. Tam Hong-wing Tony (Department of Sociology) as principal investigator, with Research Fellow Chang Ly-yun (Institute of Sociology, Academia Sinica, Taiwan) to serve as co-investigator. HK$140,000 was awarded in 2010.

This project aims to assess and compare the role of noncognitive human capital (especially self-discipline, dependability, consistent performance) in explaining health inequality in the Pearl River Delta (PRD), HK, and Taiwan, so that social intervention can be designed to shape the formation of noncognitive human capital from early childhood to adulthood.

3. “Local Knowledge of Environmental Change and Risk: A Comparative Study in Guangdong and Guangxi”

Conducted by Prof. Wu Fengshi (Department of Government and Public Administration) as principal investigator, with Research Fellow Fang Xiang (International Center for China Health and Sustainable Development, Peking University) to serve as co-investigators. HK$57,800 was awarded in 2010.

This project aims to explore both individual farmers’ and rural communities’ collective awareness of environmental degradation and health impacts, and to compare the causes of variation in different communities, so as to shed light on whether there is cultural specific, bottom-up and self-grown understanding on the issues. Sample surveys will be conducted in 4 communities, 2 from Guangdong (Dapu & Gaopu in Meizhou County) & Guangxi (Gongcheng Tao Autonomous County & Guilin City) respectively, with diverging economic development & institutional history of environmental governance but similar changes in environmental pollution. Findings will help to incorporate traditional and community-based knowledge in “modern” public policy making.

4. “Values, Beliefs and Socio-Political Engagement: An Intergenerational Investigation in Hong Kong and Guangzhou”

Conducted by Prof. Wang Qian (Department of Psychology) as principal investigator. HK$149,886 was awarded in 2010.

This project aims to examine how values and beliefs are transmitted between generations in Hong Kong and Guangzhou by comparing the profiles of values, beliefs and socio-political engagement of the youth in the 2 cities. Findings will help refine and advance theories regarding parental socialization and human development. Surveys will be conducted among multiple universities in randomly selected 300 triads of 2nd-year university students and their parents in Hong Kong and Guangzhou respectively, both with different economic and political environment.

5. “Gender and Justice: Alternative Institutional Ideologies in Two Social Enterprises in Hong Kong and Hangzhou, Zhejiang Province”

Conducted by Prof. Dai Haijing (Department of Social Work) as principal investigator. HK$126,000 was awarded in 2011.

This project aims to study two social enterprises in Hong Kong and Hangzhou, Zhejiang Province, providing employment to low-skilled middle-aged women in the retail industry, and to investigate how different discourses and ideologies of gender equality and social justice are constructed and practiced in the two social enterprises, and how they take on different roles in social change in local social and political contexts. The evidence-based references will be provided for policymakers of different paradigms to follow in order to put discourses of justice into enterprise operations and formulate social policies.

6. “Patriotic Cultural Organizations in Postwar Hong Kong: Case Studies in Sports, Literature and Music”

Conducted by Prof. Chiu Wing-kai Stephen (Department of Sociology) as principal investigator, with Senior Instructor Cheung Wing-mui (Chinese Language & Literature), PhD Candidate Lee Siu-yan (Department of Music) to serve as co-investigators. HK$59,000 was awarded in 2011.

This project is part of a larger project entitled “With China in Their Hearts: The History, Transformations and Social Impacts of the Patriotic Movement in Hong Kong”, consisting of eight sub-projects aiming to study the history of left-wing organizations in Hong Kong since the conclusion of the Second World War. The study aims to focus on three of the sub-projects on sports, literature and music which are coordinated by CU staff, namely, Happy Valley Athletic Association (愉園體育會), serial novels (連載小說) in the pro-China newspaper Wenweipo, and one of the most active Cantonese opera group (南國粵劇團). Findings will shed important light on the impacts of the “China connection” beyond a number of well-trodden areas of left-wing activities in Hong Kong.

7. “Rising Labor Costs and Rural-Urban Migration in China”

Conducted by Prof. Yang Tao Dennis (Department of Economics) as principal investigator, with Prof. Ge Suqin (Department of Economics, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University) to serve as co-investigator. HK$88,000 was awarded in 2011.

This project aims to study the progress of labor market development in China by evaluating the applicability of the classical theory (featuring a Lewis turning point in wage growth) and the neoclassical theory (focusing on rational choices of individuals and equilibrating market forces). The study will not only examine the determinants of labor mobility across regions and rural-urban sectors, but will also help identify major impediments to a well-functioning labor market in China. Findings will help to anticipate future wage trends and provide some insights into scientific policy making.

Ongoing Projects:

Nine projects funded by the Programme are on-going. They are:

1. “Parental Absence, Policy Intervention, and Children's Educational and Health Outcomes in China”

Conducted by Prof. Zhang Junsen (Department of Economics) as principal investigator, with Prof. Jere R. Behrman (Population Studies Center, University of Pennsylvania), Prof. Simon C. Fan, Prof. Wei Xiangdong (Department of Economics, Lingnan University), and Prof. Zhang Hongliang (Department of Economics) to serve as co-investigators. HK$200,000 was awarded in 2009.

This project provides policy guidance in solving the education difficulties for children of rural migrant workers who have been left behind in their hometown. Sample surveys will be conducted in 10 central elementary schools in Longhui County of Hunan. The school performance of the "left-behinds" who lack parental care and a home education environment will be compared with that of "left-behinds" who are receiving assistance in a designed intervention programme.

2. “Planning and Financing Regional Infrastructure in Mega-city Regions in China: An Institutional Perspective”

Conducted by Prof. Xu Jiang (Department of Geography and Resource Management) as principal investigator. HK$160,000 was awarded in 2009.

This project studies the interactions between the politics and the planning and financing of infrastructure at regional level in the mega-cities of China. It will examine how a regional infrastructure project is initiated, planned, and negotiated, and the major methods and political activities involved in financing the infrastructure. Studies will be conducted on the infrastructure of the railway (being the least reformed system), and that of the highway (being the most reformed system) in the city of Beijing and nine cities of the Pearl River Delta (including Guangzhou) respectively.

3. “Rights Consciousness and Rules Consciousness in Contemporary China”

Conducted by Prof. Li Lianjiang (Department of Government and Public Administration) as principal investigator. HK$160,000 was awarded in 2009.

This project identifies the strength, sources, and significance of "rights consciousness" and "rules consciousness" of people in contemporary China, so as to better understand their political attitudes and aspirations; to shed light on the direction and dynamics of the interactions between state and society; and the consequent political changes. For comparative study, samples will be drawn from two pairs of county-level districts, each containing a rural district and an urban district; with each pair being selected from two different cities, one economically developed and the other economically under-developed.

4. “Two Countries, One System?: A Comparative Study of the Political Economy of Decentralization in China and Vietnam”

Conducted by Prof. Stan Hok-wui Wong (Department of Government and Public Administration) as principal investigator. HK$90,000 was awarded in 2009.

This project studies the effects of decentralization on the political economy and economic development of China and Vietnam by drawing on comparative case studies in selected cities of the two countries.

5. “Why Does Local Finance Go Extra-budgetary? A Study of China’s Informal Fiscal Institutions”

Conducted by Prof. Vivian Jing Zhan (Department of Government and Public Administration) as principal investigator. HK$100,000 was awarded in 2009.

This project examines how fiscal management and central-local interactions jointly operate in maintaining and manipulating the extra-budgetary system in China. At provincial level, patterns on the collection and expenditure of extra-budgetary items, and their role in local governance and development will be reviewed. At the state level, the ways in which the central government regulates local practices and the responses of local governments to such regulations will be analysed.

6. “Effects of Social Capital on the Mental Health of Migrant, Left-behind, and Returning Migrant Children in Southern China”

Conducted by Prof. Wu Qiaobing (Department of Social Work) as principal investigator, with Prof. HE Liping (Department of Social Work, Sun Yat-Sen University) to serve as co-investigator. HK$130,000 was awarded in 2010.

This project assesses and compares how the mental health status of the migrant, left-behind, and returning migrant children in Southern China might be influenced by their embedded social resources (i.e., family, school, peers, and community influences) in relation to their respective migration experiences. A comparative study will be conducted in rural counties of Guizhou and in the city of Guangzhou, the latter being a major recipient city of migrants from Guizhou.

7. “Stucked in the City: Migration and Delinquency among Migrant Adolescents in Guangzhou”

Conducted by Prof. Cheung Yuet-wah (Department of Sociology) as principal investigator, with Prof. Nicole Wai-ting Cheung and Prof. Sara Hua Zhong (Department of Sociology) to serve as co-investigators. HK$75,600 was awarded in 2010.

This project provides empirical explanations on the link between migration and delinquency of migrant adolescents. The study will focus on the distinctive disadvantages posed by different school environments that might lead to different paths to delinquency. Surveys will be conducted among local and migrant students in randomly selected private and public schools in Guangzhou, one of the largest receiving cities of floating population in China.

8. “The Economic and Non-economic Factors on the Intention of Return among Migrants Workers in the Pearl River Delta”

Conducted by Prof. Tong Yuying (Department of Sociology) as principal investigator. HK$52,960 was awarded in 2010.

This project examines how and to what extent economic and demographic factors trigger a decision among migrant workers in Shenzhen, Guangzhou, and Dongguan of the Pearl River Delta to return to their hometowns. The empirical findings would generate policy implications to ease the emergence of increasingly severe labour shortages in southeast China.

9. “Why Do Some Chinese Firms Choose Hong Kong as their Asia Regional Headquarters?”

Conducted by Prof. Ma Xufei (Department of Management) as principal investigator. HK$175,000 was awarded in 2010.

This project studies the determinants behind the decision of Chinese firms to locate their Asia regional headquarters in Hong Kong. References will be provided on the appropriate policies for Hong Kong to follow in order to better adjust itself between the role of helping Chinese firms to globalize and the role of helping foreign firms to enter China. Two surveys will be conducted, one with the general managers of the parent firms in China, and the other with those of their subsidiaries in Hong Kong.

Completed Projects:

Four projects funded by the Programme were completed in the report period.

1. “A Tale of Two Rivers: Civil Society and Anti-Dam Movements in Yunnan”

Conducted by Prof. Chan Kin-man (Department of Sociology) as principal investigator. HK$184,560 was awarded in April 2006.

This project studied how the “external elite model” and the “indigenous model” of the mobilization of civil society might affect the structure of collective action, in terms of resource mobilization, political opportunities, framing, and identity construction. The emergence of civil society in China and its impact on public policy were examined.

The research findings have been published in journal, conference proceedings and presented in 4 conferences.

2. “Constructing Working-Class Social Networks: A Study of QQ and Tencent”

Conducted by Prof. Jack Linchuan Qiu (School of Journalism and Communication) as principal investigator, with Prof. Ding Wei (College of Mass Communication, Shenzhen University), Prof. Larissa Hjorth (Games Programs, RMIT University, Australia), and Prof. Zhou Baohua (School of Journalism, Fudan University) to serve as co-investigators. HK$207,000 was awarded in 2008.

This project investigated the formation and transformation of QQ-based social networks (the most popular Chinese instant messaging (IM) service) among the new working class of South China. The analysis focused on the formation of cross-level hybrid networks, a possible seedbed for the formation of a working-class and for a new form of IT entrepreneurialism in South China and beyond.

3. “Economic Reforms and Land Use/Land Cover Change in Yunnan: Between Centralized Policy Planning and Local Implementation”

Conducted by Prof. Claudio O. Delang as principal investigator, with Prof. Huang Bo and Prof. Olivia C. Bina (Department of Geography and Resource Management) to serve as co-investigators. HK$150,000 was awarded 2009.

This project evaluated the success of the Natural Forest Protection Programme (1998) and the Sloping Land Conversion Programme (1999) in the management of upstream watershed areas. By comparing changes in land cover from 1988-89, 1998-99, and 2008 with a GIS analysis, and reviewing the ecological, socio-economic, and policy factors in different areas, suggestions for improvement in future policies were provided.

4. “The Role of the State in Economic Transformation”

Conducted by Prof. Ma Shu-yun (Department of Government and Public Administration) as principal investigator. HK$130,000 was awarded in 1996.

This project identified the role of the state in the process of economic transformation, with comparative case studies being conducted on the progress of privatization in China and Russia respectively. A book entitled “Shareholding System Reform in China: Privatizing by Groping for Stones” was published in 2010.

Archive on Folk History in China

Since 2006, there has been an annual allocation from the Programme towards the building of an archive and a website (<http://mjlsh.usc.cuhk.edu.hk>) on the folk history of the people of China. The project is overseen by the Universities Service Centre for China Studies at CUHK.

The archive is a depository for memoirs and non-fiction writings by common citizens in mainland China. The website is a window through which the collection can be made accessible to the general public and memoir-writers, and to arouse the interest of the public in writing about their personal experiences with China’s changing society.

FUNCTIONAL SERVICES

Publications

Coordinator: Ms. WAN Po-san

The aim behind the publications of the HKIAPS is to disseminate and promote research on social, economic, and political developments in Hong Kong and the Asia-Pacific region. It is hoped that the extensive and effective dissemination of our research findings will broaden their intellectual and social impact, and allow more donations to be solicited for studies in the applied social sciences.

Scholars both inside and outside the Chinese University are welcome to submit manuscripts for consideration. The manuscripts received are evaluated by the Editorial Committee in collaboration with invited reviewers of relevant specialities. Priority in publication is given to the results of research undertaken by academics affiliated with the Institute and related to the domains of the established research centres and programmes.

Four publication series, namely the Research Monograph Series, Occasional Paper Series, Public Policy Forum Series, and the USC Seminar Series, are regularly produced. The first three series are mostly the results of research undertaken by scholars at the Institute. The USC Seminar Series publishes selected research papers presented at the seminars of the Universities Service Centre for China Studies. The Asia-Pacific in the 21st Century Book Series, envisioned as a high-impact series of academic works, was launched in June 2008. In addition, the Institute publishes the Asian Economic Journal for the East Asian Economic Association.

Telephone Survey Research Laboratory

Coordinator: Prof. Timothy WONG Ka-ying

The Laboratory

Established in May 1995, the Laboratory now can handle 56 telephone lines, all connected to the CATI (Computer Assisted Telephone Interview) system operated through a main server. It can cope with the demands of large samples under time constraint.

Objectives

- a. To provide a telephone survey laboratory to researchers at the Chinese University who want to use a telephone interview technique to facilitate their research.
- b. To enable the development of new research interests using the telephone interview method.
- c. To collect panel public opinion data of academic and social value.
- d. To serve as a link between the Chinese University and the public by regularly offering results of survey polls on public issues.

Accomplishments

Over 920 commissioned surveys have been completed since the establishment of the Laboratory (about 65 surveys in the past year). Our survey findings have been widely covered by the media, thereby helping to raise the profile of the Institute and the Chinese University.

The Laboratory has attracted an increasing number of researchers from academic circles and the media who want to use telephone survey as an alternative method of data collection.

With the improving financial situation, we have designed and launched our panel surveys for academic research.

Now the Laboratory has 56 interviewing stations and we have trained and pooled over 150 experienced interviewers from amongst CUHK students as well as students from other universities, providing them with not only a good source of income but also the valuable experience of conducting telephone survey research.

Policy

The Laboratory welcomes the sponsorship or commission of surveys; it is also open to collaboration with interested persons or organizations.
