Lifelong Education and Career Development: Perspectives From Academia

學界之見：終身教育及職涯發展

In a rapidly changing social and economic context, lifelong education plays an important role in shaping the current and future workforce. This presentation aims to (a) explore lifelong learning from the perspectives of current theories of career development, (b) examine the importance of lifelong education to personal enrichment and meeting labor market demands, (c) discuss issues related to quality assurance in the context of higher education. Lifelong education is fundamental to the development of competent workers at all the levels.
