

CHEM2270 Student Oriented Teaching

Course description:

The main objective of this course is to let students learn literature searching and practical skills for scientific presentation. They are required to deliver talks on different topics, as prescribed by the Department, after reading. Discussions in the class will follow after each oral presentation.