Bibliography:

Dr Erika Ngan completed her PhD degree in our Department in 2007. She is currently working as an Account Executive at SGS, one of the major Multinational Inspection, Verification, Testing, and Certification Companies in Hong Kong. In the talk, she is going to introduce what consumer product testing is and how it influences consumer's choice of product, trading and even the environment. She will also discuss how science plays an important role in this expanding industry, which is considered as a priority industry in Hong Kong.

Ms Sarah Lee completed her BSc degree also in 2007 in our Department. After graduation, she joined the MTR Corporation as a Graduate Management Trainee. Since then she has been working in various departments in MTR, including Corporate Relations Department, Operations Division and Marketing Department, etc. In the talk, she is going to introduce the idea of Management Trainee Programmes in general. And she will also discuss about the general entry requirements of these programmes and the qualities of candidates that employers tend to look for in the competitive labour market.
