Sharing by CUHK Young Alumni on their Career Development

DBS: Connie Cao, Management Associate, Bachelor Degree of Business Management 2011

I joined DBS as a Management Associate (MA) after completing my Bachelor Degree of Business Management from CUHK in 2011. If graduating from CUHK is a milestone of my student life, joining DBS as MA embarks a brand new learning and development journey for my career.

The two-year MA programme in DBS is very structured and well designed. It comprises three rotations (7 months each) in three different departments within the bank. I am going through Institutional Banking – Risk Management – Technology & Operations. Through rotations, not only can I get to learn daily banking operations, I can also gain a holistic view of the whole banking business from an end-to-end perspective, which can fast track my career development in the banking field.

In addition to the rotations, I also got the exciting opportunities to go to Singapore for training, which was led by Swiss Asia Banking School, a renowned international training consultant for banking industry. In Singapore, I met other MAs from six emerging markets in the region: China, India, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Taiwan and Singapore. We worked together on a lot of challenging projects, from which we were inspired by different opinions and gained the valuable experience to work in a cross-cultural environment. In addition to the intensive and enriching banking related trainings, we also attended team building outreach camp and workshop to sharpen soft skills such as presentation skills and project management. After training, all the MAs become good friends. This bonding builds great network for us in the region for our career in DBS too.

What I enjoyed most in the programme is that I am always learning new things and continuously being challenged to test my limit. Every time when I go to a new team, I will be given a project on a subject I might have never heard of. The process of tackling the project is full of learning opportunities. I need to take initiative to talk to different people within the bank and learn from them. My supervisor and teammates are very supportive, and always give me great guidance. In DBS, even you are a junior staff, you still have the chance to drive change and make a difference. As long as you do a good job, people will see and recognise. In one of the projects, I worked with another four MAs to revamp an internal online platform. It was not an easy task for us since we had little experience in website revamping and the schedule was very tight. However, we managed to overcome the challenges and delivered the new platform in time. Some colleagues gave us very positive feedback and our project team was even awarded DBS Spot Award, an internal award to recognise outstanding contribution of staff.

For students who are interested in joining banking industry, I think joining the MA programme at DBS is a great gateway to build solid foundation for developing a long term and successful banking career. Here you are given time and resources to learn, grow and explore your full potentials.

Deutsche Bank: Beverley Hung, Corporate Banking Coverage, Capital Markets and Treasury Solutions, Bachelor of Business Administration (Concentration in Management of International Business and Economics) 2010

About Me

I studied Business Administration as an undergraduate at CUHK. During my studies I was a member of the Outstanding Business Students Academy and attended UC Berkeley and Cambridge for my summer exchange.

In my final year of study, I also worked part-time at an investment bank to get working experience which I believe was essential for me to obtain before graduation.

My Journey

My work experience showed me the regional exposure, professionalism and fast pace of a career within an international bank.

I was successful to get an offer from Deutsche Bank. I took part in the Graduate Training Program in New York for 6-weeks with another 1-week interim training in Singapore. The training was not only intended for us to acquire banking and financial knowledge, but to build our skills and professional network with people across the Bank. This is one of best things I like about Deutsche Bank.

My Role

In my role as a Relationship Manager, I assist my senior managers explore the needs of our clients. We coordinate with our internal product partners to offer our clients tailor-made financial solutions. I also assist my team head on business management work. I get the chance to learn on literally every product offer that a client needs.

There is no routine in my work. I can be meeting clients, writing credit proposals and discussing loan agreements with legal, all while handling ad hoc requests from my internal and external contacts. There are a lot of challenges but I'm glad I have colleagues around me who are always willing to share their knowledge and advice. As a trainee, it's always about being proactive to ask questions in order to speed up your learning.

Outside the office, I love trying new things and meeting new people. This year I joined the Deutsche Bank dragon boat team (my first time!). I am not a sporty person but I just feel good trying new things. It required a lot of hard work but we placed 1st runner-up in the Mixed Gold Place Final!

My Advice

In job applications, it's always important to ask yourself why you are applying for a certain job. Do your research on the company and the industry. Understand the role you are applying for. The more research you do, the more questions you will have. Try to speak to people in the industry.

Back in college, I was quite worried about my financial knowledge when I applied for banking jobs. Yet after I started working, I personally found that it's the people skills that count most, over the technical skills you'll learn along the way.

Deutsche Bank: Dave Chan, Global Technology and Operations: Global Technology, Bachelor of Computer Engineering 2009

About Me:

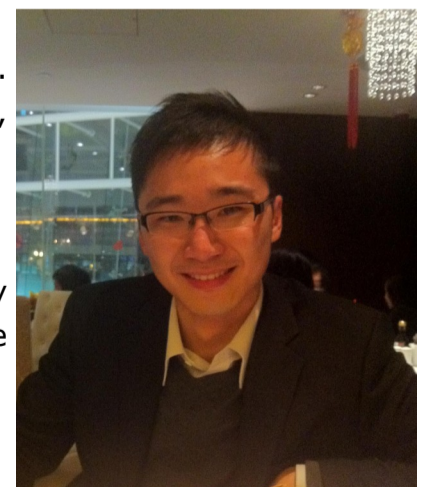

I graduated in the CUHK class of 2009, majoring in Computer Engineering with a minor in Financial Engineering. Being an Engineering Faculty graduate equipped me with a range of skills, from Unix and computer programming, to problem solving and communication skills which have been essential for me to excel at Deutsche Bank.

My Journey:

I started my career at Deutsche Bank through their Graduate Training Program offered in the Global Technology and Operations division. In the past 3 years, I had been rotated to all Global Market business lines within the Bank's Hong Kong operations.

My Role:

My first role was as a Business Analyst within the Global Prime Finance (GPF) team. After 9 months I rotated through to Global Equity Trading (EQT) as a Functional Analyst. I later settled into the Global Equity Derivatives (GED) team where I hold my current role as a Production Management Analyst.

The primary responsibility of my role is to ensure the stability of our Production Trading Platforms. We sit with the Traders to solve IT incidents in the shortest time. We safeguard our Trading Platforms from any faulty system changes and improper operation. Technology is the backbone of our operations and we need to ensure all daily trade flow are performed without any IT issues.

The biggest challenge of my work is to try to understand all our trading platforms from inside out so that we can judge potential outages and solve any problem ASAP. Our team supports more than 30 applications and many more hundreds of users across all countries in Asia.

Hong Kong is a centralised and sole support centre for the Asia GED business. The turnaround time of our support is critical to the business. I enjoy the fast pace and demanding environment of my Production Management role.

My Advice:

The Graduate Program provides excellent exposure to all major business lines within Deutsche Bank as a leading global investment bank. If you have a passion to perform and are fearless to a fast changing environment, I strongly recommend you to join us for a career with Deutsche Bank.

KPMG : Nickson Yuen, Bachelor of Business Administration (Finance) 2010

It is always important to choose your career wisely and rightly. There are many reasons why I chose to start my career at KPMG. Fantastic career prospects provide you motive to perform better. International working opportunities are everywhere which give you chances to work in overseas offices. Its clients mix includes some of the world's most innovative and successful companies in which you can fully utilize this platform to learn their secrets to success.

I choose to be an auditor as it provides a valuable chance to analyze the audit client at a very high level angle. Auditors are also required to communicate with different levels of people ranging from front line sales staff to the Chief Financial Officer. It is such a precious chance for a fresh graduate to learn throughout the whole process, I do not believe you would get the same experience elsewhere. Being an auditor requires professional knowledge in accounting and the ability to analyze the macroeconomics and its impact on the audit client. It is always so challenging to analyze complex accounting treatments, meet the reporting deadline or maintain a good relationship with clients. You will find the reward to be very fruitful when clients appreciate your professional services and how you have enhanced their efficiency.

University is a training ground for professionals. However, it has its limitations in helping students mentally prepare for the transition from being students to be professionals. Once you step out of university and into the corporate world, your life changes dramatically. You are a paid employee. It was acceptable to make mistakes in university while it is essential to try not to make mistakes in your professional life. I have to take responsibility for what I have done. The way that you present yourself, your attitude to work, your initiative, ability to work as a team and emotional intelligence play a crucial role in determining your success.

My department specializes in auditing companies from telecommunication and electronics industries. I am currently under several engagement teams auditing companies from the Fortune 500. One of the engagements required auditing in Mainland China which broadened my horizons and taught me how things work very differently in Mainland China. You have to understand their mindset in order to know their operations and accept their culture in both the working and living environment.

In addition to the benefits mentioned above, what I enjoy most about working here would be representing my department to participate the interdepartmental basketball league within the firm called "Kleague". This is organized by a group of basketball lovers here and sponsored by the firm. There are 20 department teams fighting for the championship through nearly 150 competitions held every year. I am sure this league is definitely one of the largest scale sports events held by a single company.

After spending two years time in one of the most prestigious firms in the world, I have found that choosing KPMG as my first employer has proven to be a very good decision.

Reminder: You Are Reminded NOT To Involve in any unlicensed Guesthouse Operation

In view of a recent court case regarding the conviction of three Mainland post-graduate students for operating an unlicensed guesthouse, the Home Affairs Department would like to bring your attention to the followings:

Before commencing a hotel or guesthouse business in Hong Kong, a license issued under the Hotel and Guesthouse Accommodation Ordinance shall be obtained. Under the Ordinance, "hotel/guesthouse" means any premises being held out by the occupier, proprietor or tenant for providing sleeping accommodation at a fee with a tenancy term of less than 28 continuous days.

Under section 5 of the Ordinance, any person operates, keeps, manages or otherwise has control of a guesthouse without a valid guesthouse licence commits an offence and will lead to a criminal record. Any person who is convicted for operating an unlicensed guesthouse is liable to imprisonment. The maximum penalty upon conviction is a $200,000 fine and imprisonment for two years, and a fine of $20,000 for each day during which the offence continues. According to records, heavier sentences for unlicensed guesthouse operations have been passed by the courts in the recent years. For further information, please refer to the website of Office of the Licensing Authority, Home Affairs Department: www.hadla.gov.hk.

溫馨提示: 切勿涉及任何經營無牌旅館事宜

鑑於新近有關三名內地碩士生因經營無牌旅館而被定罪一事，民政事務總署特別作出以下提醒：

凡在香港開展旅館業務，必須先領取根據《旅館業條例》發出的牌照。根據《條例》，“旅館”指任何處所，其佔用人、東主或租客顯示會提供收費的住宿地方，而出租期少於連續 28 天。

根據《條例》第 5 條，凡任何人沒有有效旅館牌照而經營、開設、管理或以其他方式控制旅館，即屬犯罪，並會留下刑事記錄。違者一經定罪，可被判監禁，最高可處罰款 20,000 元及監禁兩年，並可就罪行持續期間的每一天另處罰款 20,000 元。根據記錄，近年法院加重有關經營無牌旅館的刑罰，詳情請參閱牌照事務處網站 www.hadla.gov.hk。
