Special Performance

Midnight

by Greenstick Fractures

1 aerial bus, 8 people, 60 minutes. That's all it takes to see humanity for what it truly is.

A group of people are stranded on a malfunctioned aerial bus Crusader 50 that tours across the planet Midnight – a planet known for being uninhabitable by all walks of life due to its radiation . . . or so they thought before they heard the questionable knocking outside. One of the passengers starts repeating what everyone else is saying, something sinister is lurking among the passengers as paranoia and fear rise within. Whatever that thing might be, that's the least of their concern with their morality being put to the test.

A Blind Eye, A Deaf Ear

by Broken Legs

Homeless, crazed, filthy; surely the beggars leeching off the city's leftovers are to blame for the predicament it finds itself in.

Whip, whip, whip; surely you would say what you've seen? You know in your heart it's right.

Watch, hear, feel; and make your choice. Whose story would you listen to?

Oedipus the King

by Moo

Who is the murderer of Laius? Is it you? The one who murdered Laius must be exiled and pay the price. While everyone is discovering the truth about the murderer of Laius, Oedipus, the King realized the unbearable truth... What is he going to do? We shall find out.

This play is adapted from Oedipus the King by Sophocles, translated by Ian Johnston (2004) of Malaspina University-College, Nanaimo, BC.

TW: This show contains blood, violence and suicide themes.
