1. Introduction

This guide introduces the searching techniques and relevant sources to track your citations on your own.

What is Citation Tracking?

Citation tracking indicates the number of times your particular work has been cited by other authors. It is one of the factors for measuring research impact for grant applications and promotions. It can also be useful to help you to find other scholars who have the same research interests.

There is no one comprehensive source for law citation tracking. Unfortunately, law publications are spread across a number of databases and websites, especially as multi-disciplinary areas are more and more popular. You will need to search across a number of major law databases and websites to track the citations of your works.

2. How to Search

The legal databases, especially for Lexis and Westlaw, use terms and connectors to conduct effective searching. When searching by name, please note the variation of your names.

- Variation of Names

e.g. CHAN Tai Man

CHAN Tai Man, Peter

Peter Chan

CHAN T. M.

Chan T. M. Peter

陳大文

- Searching Techniques by using connectors:

e.g. “chan tai man” or (chan /3 peter /3 m! /3 t!) or “陳大文”

3. Legal Sources

Free Resources:

LawCite (<http://www.austlii.edu.au/lawcite/>)

LawCite is a free source of citation information and links to freely accessible primary and secondary law sources.

- Enter your name in the Author field

- Your publications will be shown on the result list. The last column Citation Index indicates the number of citations to your publications. Please click the globe image  to see details of the works, journal articles, cases, etc. which have cited your publications. (Articles and cases in WorldLII will also be included in the results)

To the right, there is a navigation menu with links: "Welcome: USER WLA_IP", "Content Type", "Jurisdiction", "Practice Area", "Help", and "Log Off". Below the logo is a horizontal menu with tabs: "Home", "Cases", "Legislation", "Commentary", "Journals", "Current Awareness", "News", "Westlaw Next", and "ProView". The "Home" tab is selected. The main content area is titled "Home" and features a search box containing the text "chan /10 tai /10 man /10 peter % AU(Chan)". To the right of the search box is a dropdown menu set to "All" and a green search icon. Below the search box are several checkboxes for selecting jurisdictions: Australia, Malaysia, Hong Kong (checked), Philippines, India, Singapore, Cambodia, UK, Indonesia, Myanmar, Korea, and New Zealand. There are also radio buttons for "Document Free Text" (selected) and "Document Title". A "Terms in Context" section has a checked checkbox and a green icon. At the bottom of the search area are "Search" and "Clear Fields" buttons. On the right side of the page, there is a "What's new" section with an orange header. The text in this section reads: "English-translated laws from Cambodia, Indonesia and Myanmar. Researching and undertaking transactions across ASEAN is complicated. Apabi (Chinese Only)

Apabi is an ebook platform which contains over 60,000 Chinese e-books published by Mainland China.

Go to Advanced Search, under Reference Works (参考文献), enter your name in Chinese in the Author field. It shows the number of your works being cited by other books

The screenshot shows the '高级检索' (Advanced Search) page on the Apabi platform. The breadcrumb trail is '中华数字书苑 > 高级检索 > 电子图书'. The '参考文献' (Reference Works) tab is selected. The search criteria are set to '作者' (Author) with the value '陈大文'. There are two 'AND' operators available for combining criteria. A '检索' (Search) button is located at the bottom.
