INTRODUCTION

Since its establishment in September 1990, the Hong Kong Institute of Asia-Pacific Studies (hereafter, the Institute or HKIAPS) has been promoting and co-ordinating inter-disciplinary studies on Hong Kong, its neighbouring Asian countries and communities within the Asian Pacific region. The Institute aims to serve as a bridge between overseas scholars in Asia-Pacific studies and teaching and research staff at The Chinese University of Hong Kong (hereafter, the Chinese University or CUHK).

The Institute supports two major types of research activities: individual projects funded by or affiliated with the Institute, and long-term inter-disciplinary research programmes that constitute the backbone of the activities of the Institute. The latter activities are described at length in the following pages, while the former will be mentioned in particular segments of specific programme reports.

MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR

The past year represented the last year of the first term of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region (SAR) Administration under Mr. Tung Chee-hwa's leadership. Hong Kong has had a rough passage economically, exacerbated by the 911 terrorist attacks in the United States. From the Institute's standpoint, the year was uneventful until the time for writing this report. What transpired is that two of our colleagues have been invited to join Mr. Tung's newly launched cabinet team, one of his initiatives aimed at turning around Hong Kong's fortunes. On 1 August 2002, Prof. Arthur Li, Vice-Chancellor of the University, stepped down from his university position and became the Secretary for Education and Manpower. Prof. Lau Siu-kai, Associate Director of the Institute since its founding, became Head of the Central Policy Unit, the think-tank for the SAR government. Taking a leave of absence from the Institute, Prof. Lau's appointment is widely applauded because of his prominent media visibility over the years and his balanced and shrewd commentaries. His newly published The First Tung Chee-hwa Administration is evidence of his commitment to research on the political dynamics and evolution in Hong Kong. We wish him luck in his new job, where he will have to maintain a prudent balance between being the academic community's "inside" voice and acting as a vehicle to help the populace understand the administration's policies. Prof. Sung Yun-wing has since been appointed Associate Director of the Institute.

In the second year since relocating to the Esther Lee Building, the Institute has had a normal run of research activities and publications. Six seminars and conferences have been held, details of which may be found in the programme reports that follow. What might be singled out for mention here is the seminar on "The Challenges and Opportunities for the Chinese Economic Sphere after China's Entry to WTO," held on campus on 19-20 December 2001, under the auspices of the Shanghai-

A group picture of Institute Director, Prof. Yeung Yue-man (right, front), with other guests of honour and some core members of the Shanghai-Hong Kong Development Institute at the latter's first annual seminar, held on the theme of "The Challenges and Opportunities for the Chinese Economic Sphere after China's Entry to WTO" in December 2001.

Hong Kong Development Institute, with administrative and other support provided by this Institute. The seminar could not have been held at a more opportune time, as China was only formally admitted to WTO membership in November 2001, after over 15 years of protracted negotiations. A monograph arising from the proceedings is in the final stages of publication.

The volume marking the tenth anniversary of the founding of the Institute appeared as New Challenges for Development and Modernization: Hong Kong and the Asia-Pacific Region in the New Millennium in April 2002, exactly two years after the conference was held. It is a timely publication because some of the chapters focus on the socio-economic transformation of Hong Kong since the handover. Dr. Lam Kin-chung, a Trustee of Shaw College, has provided a grant to partly fund the publication of the volume, for which I remain very grateful.

Looking forward, the Institute has entered into a collaborative venture with the Hong Kong Housing Authority to appraise the development of public housing in Hong Kong since 1953, when the then colonial government was forced into direct intervention in housing provision following the disastrous Shek Kip Mei squatter fire. The publication of two volumes, in English and Chinese, has been planned to mark the golden jubilee of public housing in Hong Kong. Preparation for the volumes, with the participation of well-known scholars and professionals in Hong Kong, is well under way.

During the past year, the Institute continued to expand and consolidate contacts within and outside the Hong Kong community. We received a generous donation from Pacific Century CyberWorks Limited (PCCW) to fund public policy research. Arising from this donation, a seminar on "Hong Kong's Telecommunications Policy" was held, in collaboration with the Ming Pao Daily News, on 26 February 2002. A series of policy forums are being planned for the coming year, focusing on important policy issues of the time.

In terms of training activities, the Institute continued to organize an Introductory China Course with the Hong Kong Civil Service Training and Development Institute. This course has proven to be popular over the years. In addition, at the request of the Tianjin municipal authorities, two training courses on human resources management were organized for about 30 participants each in April and September 2001.

The Hong Kong APEC Study Centre, which had been hosted by the Institute for two years, was officially moved to the City University of Hong Kong in September 2001. There is much that needs to be done in terms of information sharing and development of mutual interests with member APEC Study Centres. We wish the Hong Kong Centre well in its continuing efforts to project Hong Kong's image and to play its role in furthering Hong Kong's interests.

The past year also saw the Shanghai-Hong Kong Development Institute fully integrated with the normal work of the Institute. Most of the former Institute's publications and some of its research activities are undertaken by the staff of this Institute. A full report of the first year of activities of the Shanghai-Hong Kong Development Institute may be found in its Shanghai-Hong Kong Annual 2001 published in early 2002.

Finally, the internal functional units of the Institute have had a busy and successful year. The Institute has to date published 55 research monographs since its inception, 3 during the year under review. The corresponding numbers for occasional papers are 127 and 10. The Telephone Survey Research Laboratory, established since 1995, has cumulatively undertaken 380 commissioned surveys, with 60 undertaken during the past year. The Documentation Unit has also successfully adjusted to its new premises in the Esther Lee Building. Its project of digitizing past Hong Kong newspapers has continued.

With Hong Kong, China and the Asia-Pacific region at large in the throes of rapid changes in the Information Age, there is a need for quality research to enable policy-makers and planners to make rational and prudent decisions. The Institute is prepared to contribute to maintaining Hong Kong's competitive edge and towards making it a better place to live and to work.

Later on, he joined the US Treasury's Asia Representative Office as an economist. He was a Regulatory Affairs Manager with the Hong Kong Telecommunications Authority, the local telecom watchdog, before coming to the Institute. He is now the co-ordinator of the Institute's Documentation Unit. His research interests include new institutional economics, public choice and economics of transition.

RESEARCH PROGRAMMES

Cultural Relations and Identities in East Asia

Programme Director: Prof. Tan Chee-beng

Programme Members:

Prof. Joseph Bosco, Department of Anthropology

Prof. Sidney C. H. Cheung, Department of Anthropology

Prof. Tracey L. D. Lu, Department of Anthropology

Prof. Eric K. W. Ma, School of Journalism and Communication

Prof. Gordon Mathews, Department of Anthropology

Objectives

This inter-disciplinary research programme is designed to facilitate and consolidate diverse research interests in cultural development within and cultural interactions among East Asian countries at the Chinese University as well as in the broader Hong Kong academic community. Cultural relations among Asia-Pacific countries have gained prominence in the post-cold war era, as cultural activities carry new political meanings and commodified cultural items are promoted and traded across national and regional boundaries. The research projects focus on a broad array of identities and cultural relations in East Asia, including media and popular culture; youth culture and education; ethnic, national and pan-Asian identity; cultural tourism; cosmopolitan culture and democratization; and food, cuisine and cultural change.

There are four categories of research activities in the Cultural Relations and Identities Research Programme. They are: tradition, change and identity; culture, identity and nationalism; cultural unity and diversity in Asia; and transnationalism and global culture. During the past year, programme members were active participants in conferences and have published in journals and books. Four books edited by programme members were published during the year, namely Luyou, renleixue yu Zhongguo shehui (Tourism, Anthropology and China) (edited by Yang Hui, Tan Chee-beng and Sidney C. H. Cheung, 2001), Consuming Hong Kong (edited by Gordon Mathews and Lui Tai-lok, 2001), Changing Chinese Foodways in Asia (edited by David Y. H. Wu and Tan Chee-beng, 2001) and The Globalization of Chinese Food (edited by David Y. H. Wu and Sidney C. H. Cheung, 2002).

Gender Research Centre

Director: Prof. Fanny M. Cheung

Associate Director: Prof. Yip Hon-ming

Renamed the Gender Research Centre in 2000, a new diversity of academic activities and social participation marked our work in 2001-2002. The Centre is interdisciplinary in nature with members from different academic departments within CUHK. Scholars from the Social Science, Humanities, Medicine, Business Administration, Education and other fields have participated in the Centre's various research activities. Scholars from other institutions and students who share the same interests as the Centre may join as affiliates. During the past year, we have updated the Centre's homepage at <http://www.cuhk.edu.hk/hkiaps/grc/>.

The two-day presentation and discussion covered various gender-related topics on Chinese culture, including religion, identity and social development. Prof. Fanny M. Cheung, Prof. Yip Hon-ming and Prof. Wong Wai-ching represented the Gender Research Centre. Six papers from CUHK were read at the Conference.

The Annual Gender Role Workshop: "Life Long Education and Economic Empowerment for Women" was held on 25 May 2002. Mrs. Sophie Leung, Chairwoman of the Women's Commission, inaugurated the Workshop. Participants included academics, students, members of women's groups, women's service providers and practitioners in the field of education.

Asian Economic Journal

This is the twelfth year in which Osaka International University and our Programme jointly publish the Asian Economic Journal for the East Asian Economic Association. Since 1997, the number of issues published each year has been increased from three to four. From 1997 onwards, Prof. Liu Pak-wai has served as the Secretary General of the East Asian Economic Association while Prof. Sung Yun-wing has served as Managing Editor of the journal till the end of 2000. In 2001, Prof. Kwong Kai-sun took over as Managing Editor and Prof. Sung Yun-wing served as Editor.

Impact

Prof. Liu Pak-wai serves as member of the Economic Advisory Committee, Commission on Strategic Development, Council of Advisors on Innovation and Technology, Task Force on Employment, Panel of Arbitrators, Process Review Panel for the Securities and Futures Commission, Skills Upgrading Scheme Steering Committee, and Hong Kong Committee on Pacific Economic Co-operation. He is also Research Director of the Hong Kong Centre for Economic Research, Secretary General of the East Asian Economic Association, member of Management Committee of Hong Kong Institute of Economic and Business Strategy, nominator of Fukuoka Asian Culture Prizes, and Advisory Editor of the Education Journal.

Prof. Sung Yun-wing serves as Editor of the Asian Economic Journal, Book Review Editor of Pacific Economic Review, Corresponding Editor (Hong Kong) of Asian-Pacific Economic Literature, and member of the editorial board of China Review. He is also part-time member of the Central Policy Unit, member of the Council of Advisers of the Hong Kong Institute for Monetary Research, the Humanities, Social Sciences and Business Studies Panel of the Research Grants Council of Hong Kong, the PECC Trade Policy Forum Hong Kong Committee, and the Corporate Economists' Advisory Group of the International Chamber of Commerce, Hong Kong, China Business Council. These professional activities, which are related to HKAPE, have an impact on the local community as well as the Asia-Pacific region. They also help to establish the image of the Research Programme.

Asian Economic Journal is based in Asia and is devoted to publishing articles on the Asian economies. The journal has a wide circulation not only in Asia but also in Europe and North America. Its readership is expected to increase as economists world-wide focus their attention on the economic successes and problems of the Asia-Pacific region. The Editorial Committee is very broad-based. It includes leading economists from all major East and Southeast Asian countries. Because the journal is edited, printed and published at CUHK, it bears the name of CUHK together with Osaka International University on the front cover. The Secretariat of the East Asian Economic Association is also located at CUHK using HKIAPS as its address. The journal and the location of the Secretariat have promoted the image of CUHK in general, and HKAPE and HKIAPS in particular, as institutions active in research within the Asia-Pacific region.

The core areas of study of this Programme include: political changes in Hong Kong, driven by political reforms, the return of the territory's sovereignty to China in 1997, the mode of governance of the HKSAR government and socio-economic changes. A wide range of research topics have been covered and more will be included in the future. At present, the Programme concentrates on issues related to popular elections, relationship between China and Hong Kong, regime-building, institutional changes, policy reforms, political leadership and political conflicts.

Data Collection

The Programme has a collection of research materials on Hong Kong's political scene. Aside from newspaper clippings, the Programme also collects unpublished research reports from various social and political organizations.

With its focus on local electoral studies, the Programme has built up a comprehensive collection of documents and materials related to elections and electoral campaigns in Hong Kong. The collection forms a useful database for the study of future elections in Hong Kong.

International Exchange

The Programme is also a partner of a project on the comparative study of political culture and political participation in Hong Kong, Taiwan and China. This cross-cultural study is coordinated by Prof. Andrew Nathan of Columbia University. Researchers come from Hong Kong, China, Taiwan and the United States. The Hong Kong team (composed of Prof. Lau Siu-kai and Prof. Kuan Hsin-chi) is responsible for a questionnaire survey in Hong Kong. The survey was completed in the summer of 1993. Three workshops have already been held in August 1992, March 1993 and July 1995 in Honolulu, Los Angeles and Hong Kong, respectively.

The research project, "The Legislative Council Elections in 1998," has attracted attention overseas and subsequently been incorporated into a 14-nation collaborative project, "The Comparative National Elections Project (CNEP)," co-ordinated by Prof. Richard Gunther of Ohio State University. A looser affiliation has also been established with another and larger international research project, "Comparative Study of Electoral Systems (CSES)," co-ordinated by Prof. Steven Rosenstone of the Institute of Social Research at the University of Michigan.

Research Activities

Both Prof. Lau Siu-kai and Prof. Kuan Hsin-chi continue to study the patterns of political changes in Hong Kong, particularly in areas such as political leadership, regime building, political culture, development of political parties and emergent political issues.

Since many commissioned research projects of the Telephone Survey Research Laboratory of the Institute are about local politics, the Programme has provided technical and staff support to the Laboratory and is instrumental in its smooth operation.

The following research projects are currently sponsored by the Programme:

"Political Change and the Civil Servants in Hong Kong" by Prof. Lau Siu-kai. The project is funded by the Chinese University.

"Political Culture and Political Participation in China, Taiwan and Hong Kong" by Prof. Lau Siu-kai, Prof. Kuan Hsin-chi, Prof. Andrew Nathan (Columbia University), Prof. Hu Fo (National Taiwan University), Prof. Chu Yun-han (National Taiwan University) and Prof. Shi Tian-jian (Duke University). The project is funded by, inter alia, the National Science Foundation, the Chiang Ching-kuo Foundation and the Luce Foundation. The questionnaire survey launched in Hong Kong was partly funded by the Center for Pacific Rim Studies, University of California, Los Angeles. Participants are in the process of writing chapters to be included in a forthcoming book.

"Democratization and Value Change" by Prof. Kuan Hsin-chi and Prof. Lau Siu-kai. A territory-wide household survey was launched in September 2001. More than 800 cases were successfully interviewed during the fieldwork.

"Learning, Electoral Behaviour, and Democratization in Hong Kong" by Prof. Kuan Hsin-chi and Prof. Lau Siu-kai. The project is funded by a RGC Grant. A questionnaire survey was conducted shortly after the Legislative Council election was held on September 2000. About 1,000 cases were successfully completed during the fieldwork.

Social Indicators and Social Development of Hong Kong

Programme Directors: Prof. Lau Siu-kai
Ms. Wan Po-san

Objectives

The Programme focuses on the measurement and study of social development in Hong Kong. Its prime purpose is to build up a set of longitudinal data on the subjective and objective dimensions of social conditions and social change. It is hoped that the availability of these data will facilitate not only the analysis of patterns of social change and the exploration of social issues and problems but also contribute to the evaluation and formulation of public policy.

Conferences

"2002 Conference on Social Image and Social Indicators: Hong Kong and Taiwan"

This conference was partly funded by Mr. Richard Liu and was organized in co-operation with the Institute of Sociology, Academia Sinica. It was held on 14-15 June 2002 in Taipei. Fourteen papers were presented.

"The Third Conference on Social Stratification Studies in Chinese Societies"

This conference, organized in collaboration with the Centre of Asian Studies of the University of Hong Kong and the Centre for Social Policy Studies of the Hong Kong Polytechnic University, is scheduled to be held on 28-30 November 2002 at the Chinese University. Over 30 scholars from mainland China, Taiwan and Hong Kong have been invited to participate.

Research Activities

Highlights of the main activities during the past year are underlined as follows:

“Social Indicators Survey Series” co-ordinated by Prof. Lau Siu-kai and Ms. Wan Po-san

The Programme has been conducting a series of biennial territory-wide household surveys since 1988. These periodic surveys aim to measure the scope and extent of significant aspects of social change in Hong Kong by focusing on the perception, values, feelings, aspirations and sense of well-being of the Hong Kong people on various important aspects of their daily lives.

The survey, “Social and Political Change in a Period of Reform and Readjustment: Indicators of Social Development in Hong Kong 2001,” is funded by the Research Grants Council’s Competitive Earmarked Research Grant and is conducted in collaboration with the Centre for Social Policy Studies of the Hong Kong Polytechnic University and the Centre of Asian Studies of the University of Hong Kong. It focuses on social issues and political problems engendered by Hong Kong’s sudden economic downturn, its long and painful road to economic recovery and the HKSAR government’s multifarious reform initiatives.

CUHK team members include Prof. Lau Siu-kai, Prof. Kuan Hsin-chi, Prof. Deborah Davis, Prof. Chan Kin-man, Mr. Simon Ng and Ms. Wan Po-san. Special topics in the 2001 survey included: (1) education, work and economic values; (2) family and Hong Kong-mainland relation; (3) political attitudes; (4) housing and legal culture; and (5) poverty. The survey fieldwork was launched in May 2001. A general report, entitled Indicators of Social Development: Hong Kong 2001, is expected to be published by the end of 2002.

“A Comparative Study of Social Networks and Mental Health in Hong Kong and Beijing” by Prof. Rance P. L. Lee (Principal Investigator), Prof. Chan Ying-keung, Prof. Peng Yusheng and Prof. Gina Lai

This project is funded by the Research Grants Council's Competitive Earmarked Research Grant and is conducted in collaboration with the Peking University. This is a large-scale survey on the roles of ego-centred social networks in the mental health process in Hong Kong and Beijing. It aims to address two major issues: (1) How do the structures and processes of social networks interplay to affect mental health status? (2) How are social networks and related mental health outcomes shaped and constrained by micro socio-economic factors (e.g., gender, age and social class) and macro socio-economic contexts (e.g., cultural tradition, organization of work and community)? Both surveys were conducted in the summer of 2000. Efforts have been made to analyze the composition of social support networks, the reliability and validity of mental health measurements, the patterns of perceived social support and their effects on mental health, and the impact of personal network structures and functions on life satisfaction.

"A Comparative Study of the Social Image of Taiwan and Hong Kong"

CUHK team: Prof. Lau Siu-kai and Ms. Wan Po-san

Taiwan team: Prof. Yi Chin-chun, Prof. Chang Ying-hwa, Prof. Chiu Hei-yuan, Prof. Fu Yang-chih and Prof. Michael Hsin-huang Hsiao

This project is conducted in collaboration with the Institute of Sociology of the Academia Sinica, Taiwan. A telephone survey will be conducted once or twice a year to gauge the perception, values and subjective well-being of people in both societies. The core questions of the questionnaire will be kept unchanged as far as possible so as to detect social trends and changes, while questions on special topics will be flexible enough to reflect changes in social conditions. The second survey, focused on cultural life, was carried out in November 2001.

"Hong Kong Social Attitudes Survey: 2001" by Prof. Kenneth Chau, Prof. Joseph M. Chan, Prof. Stephen W. K. Chiu, Prof. Clement Y. K. So, Prof. Ting Kwok-fai and Prof. Wong Chack-kie

This project is funded by Mr. Richard Liu and is conducted in collaboration with the Faculty of Social Science. Major topics of this territory-wide representative household survey included social welfare, mass media and information technology. The survey fieldwork was launched in May 2001. A general report is expected to be published by the end of 2002.

South China

Programme Director: Prof. Kuan Hsin-chi

Introduction

When established ten years ago, the Programme was designed to encourage research activities by faculty as well as graduate students through awarding research grants and postgraduate fellowships. There had been no limitation as to the discipline or topics, except that the focus must be on South China. Starting two years ago, the scope of research had been extended to cover the whole of China and greater emphasis has been placed on the development of in-house team projects. As of today, three team projects have been formed: the Intergovernmental Relations Project, the Research Project on Civil Society, and the Political Economy and Regional Disparities Project. It is expected that the Programme will change its name in due course to reflect the new development.

Research Activities

“Intergovernmental Relations Project” co-ordinated by Prof. Wu Guoguang

This project was formed in early 2001. It has organized two academic events in the past year. First, a panel on Intergovernmental Relations in Greater China was organized for the annual conference of the Hong Kong Association of Political Science held on 4 May 2002, at the City University of Hong Kong. Two papers, one by Prof. Kuan Hsin-chi and Ms. Kitty Poon, and the other by Prof. Yu Xingzhong, were presented, while several other members of the Project served as discussants. Second, the Project co-sponsored with its Taiwan partner, the National Chinan University, a conference under the title of “Prospecting the New Century: Inter-governmental Relations in Taiwan, Hong Kong, and Mainland China.” It was conceived as the first of a series of such conferences. The conference was held in Taipei on 18 May 2002, with 12 paper presentations and two sessions of roundtable discussions. Four colleagues from our Project contributed papers, as follows:

Ms. Kitty Poon and Prof. Kuan Hsin-chi, "The Hollowing Out of the 'One Country Two Systems' Framework: China's Hong Kong Policy in a Changing Context";

Prof. Wang Shaoguang, "The Political Logic of Fiscal Transfers in China";

Prof. Peter Cheung, "Intergovernmental Relations in South China";

Prof. Yu Xingzhong, "Constitutional Interface between Hong Kong and the Mainland."

Two colleagues (Prof. Linda Li and Prof. Wu Guoguang) served as commentators. After the conference, some colleagues visited the National Chinan University and took part in a planning workshop with faculty members of the Department of Public Administration and Public Policy on matters of future co-operation.

"Research Project on Civil Society"

The project was established in early 2002 to replace "the Comparative Study of Civil Organizations in Chinese Societies." Prof. Chan Kin-man from the Department of Sociology was appointed as the convener of the project. Members include Prof. Kuan Hsin-chi and Prof. Wang Shaoguang of the Department of Government and Public Administration, Prof. Lui Tai-lok from the Department of Sociology, and Prof. Joseph Man Chan from the School of Journalism and Communication. The project aims at promoting research on civil society in mainland China, Taiwan and Hong Kong. The project will hold meetings and conferences to facilitate intellectual exchange among scholars in CUHK and other institutes on the subject of civil societies. In April 2002, together with the Research Institute on Guangdong Development at Zhongshan University in Guangzhou, the project established the Research Center on Civil Society in South

China, based in Zhongshan University. The centre represents a long-term commitment by CUHK and Zhongshan University to the study of the social, economic and political impacts of the development of civil society in this region. The centre will concentrate on the study of business organizations in Guangdong from late Qing to the present.

"Political Economy and Regional Disparities Project"

This principal director of the project is Prof. Tsui Kai-yuen from the Department of Economics, with Prof. Wang Youqiang, also from the Department of Economics, and Prof. Hu Angang, of Tsinghua University, as co-investigators. The project, funded by the Research Grants Council, has entered its third year and is due to be completed soon. Current research activities concentrate on (1) examining how Chinese political institutions that are quite different from market preserving federalism can explain the seemingly paradoxical fiscal behaviour of local governments, (2) exploring the forces that shaped China's inter-provincial inequality in the last five decades, and (3) studying the fiscal relations between central and local governments embedded in a vertical control system where local officials are appointed by the central government. This year's outputs include a published paper (see under the "Publications" section below) and two draft papers, "Accounting for Changes in China's Regional Disparities" and "Decentralization with Political Trump: Revenue Collection and Control," both by Prof. Tsui Kai-yuen and Prof. Wang Youqiang. Other than the three papers mentioned above, a data set of Chinese fiscal data has been created and may be used to explore a wide range of issues on Chinese public finance.

Urban and Regional Development in Pacific Asia

Programme Director: Prof. Yeung Yue-man

Objectives

The Programme promotes and facilitates research on economic development and social change in the Asia-Pacific region through studies on urban and regional development. In the past the Programme has supported a large number of research projects on key urban development and globalization issues and China's regional development and economic reforms. Many books and other publications have appeared and have received enthusiastic support. Since last year, a new direction has been embarked upon in focusing research efforts on China's western region.

The Programme has continued to receive financial support from the Lippo Group, which has generously provided an annual grant to the Programme since 1993. For this we are grateful to Dr. Stephen Riady and Mr. J. P. Lee, MBE, OBE, JP, for their friendly encouragement and much-valued confidence in our work. During the past year, Dr. Lam Kin-chung, a Trustee of Shaw College, also provided financial support, for which we wish to extend our heart-felt thanks and appreciation.

Conferences and Invited Presentations

During the past year, the Programme did not organize any conference or seminar. It was busy in following up the work necessary to bring out books arising from recent conferences. Specifically, book arising from the international conference marking the tenth anniversary celebration of the Institute held in April 2000, and another one focused on China's West held in December 2000 have been published, as reported below.

At present, efforts are being directed to the forthcoming seminar being planned to take place at Yunnan University in Kunming in December 2002 under the auspices of the Shanghai-Hong Kong Development Institute on the subject of "China's Western Development and Its Implications on Neighbouring Countries."

In the year under review, Prof. Yeung has been invited to make numerous presentations and give conference papers, as detailed below:

Research Activities

Two books arising from previous conferences, mentioned earlier, which the Programme undertook the responsibility of editing, have appeared in print. Details may be found below.

The Programme has continued to contribute to the work of the Urban Population Dynamics Panel under the auspices of the United States' National Research Council. The final report has been completed and is being reviewed for publication. The Programme has been involved in this important and worthy enterprise over the past three years.

Early in 2002, via the Institute, the Programme was invited by the Hong Kong Housing Authority to participate in a collaborative effort to produce two books marking the fiftieth anniversary of Hong Kong's involvement in public housing development in 2003. The two books, in Chinese and English, have included top scholars and professionals in the field of housing as contributors. The books will be published by the Chinese University Press in 2003.

Another book project on China's western development has been progressing well. It has the participation of a large number of contributors from this University and research institutes in China. It is also scheduled for publication in 2003.

FUNCTIONAL SERVICES

External Liaison

Co-ordinator: Dr. Timothy Ka-ying Wong

Dr. Timothy Ka-ying Wong is responsible for external liaison work of the Institute. This is a duty of a rather regular and routine nature. The overall objective is to publicize the activities of the Institute so that the public and concerned groups or persons can be informed of our work, make use of our research results and take part in our activities. External liaison has three main components:

Publicity about our publications includes preparing and issuing press releases to the media, distributing information sheets and order forms to relevant institutions and individuals, and liaising with our distributors.

Publicity about our conferences and seminars includes preparing and issuing press releases, sending invitations and publicity materials to the media, arranging and facilitating the reporting work of the press, and assisting the organizing committees to handle enquiries and public relations.

Liaison with overseas institutions and individuals includes the handling of enquiries and the exchange of information and publications.

During the last year, over 60 scholars from the mainland and overseas have visited the Institute, 6 seminars or conferences have been held, and 10 occasional papers and 3 research monographs have been published. On the whole, our guests and visiting participants were pleased, and the coverage of our seminar/conference activities by the media was satisfactory. Our publications were also made known and distributed in an effective manner.

Telephone Survey Research Laboratory

Co-ordinator: Dr. Timothy Ka-ying Wong

The Laboratory

Established in May 1995, the Laboratory can handle over 30 telephone lines, all connected to the CATI (Computer Assisted Telephone Interview) system operated through a main server. It can cope with the demands of large samples under time constraint.

Objectives

- a. To provide a telephone survey laboratory to researchers at the Chinese University who want to use a telephone interview technique to facilitate their research.
- b. To enable the development of new research interests using the telephone interview method.
- c. To collect panel public opinion data of academic and social value.
- d. To serve as a link between the Chinese University and the public by regularly offering results of survey polls on public issues.

Accomplishments

Over 380 commissioned surveys have been completed since the establishment of the Laboratory (60 surveys in the past year).

Our survey findings have been widely covered by the media, thereby helping to raise the profile of the Institute and the Chinese University.

The Laboratory has attracted an increasing number of researchers from academic circles and the media who want to use telephone survey as an alternative method of data collection.

With the improving financial situation, we have designed and launched our panel surveys for academic research.

We have trained and pooled over 50 experienced interviewers from amongst CUHK students as well as students from other universities, providing them with not only a good source of income but also the valuable experience of conducting telephone survey research.

We have conducted several seminars for secondary school and technical college students and introduced them to the methodology and interpretation of opinion polling.

Policy

The Laboratory welcomes the sponsorship or commission of surveys; it is also open to collaboration with interested persons or organizations.

Documentation Unit

Co-ordinator: Dr. Gary Moon-cheung Shiu

In tandem with the relocation of the HKIAPS, the Documentation Unit (DU) has a new home as well. The DU is now located at Room 502 of the Esther Lee Building.

The DU holds a vast collection of books, papers, journals and other reference materials on countries around the Asia-Pacific region. Deserving special mention is our collection of Hong Kong newspaper clippings with broad coverage from the 50s to August 2000. In addition, the DU carries a large number of unpublished surveys on many different social issues.

During the past year, electronic archiving of our Hong Kong newspaper clippings continues. Progress is slow but steady. Because of the poor quality of some previously scanned images, a substantial portion of our student helpers' effort is now devoted to the restoration of old images. Where restoration is not an option, the original newspaper clippings were re-scanned. Thus far, about 80% of our newspaper clippings dated from the 50s to the 70s has been digitally archived.

From July 2001 to the mid June 2002, altogether 286 users visited the DU, with students continuing to be the core group visitors. Outside visitors were the second largest group of users. With the train station just steps away, DU should now be more easily accessible to outside visitors.

During the past year, DU has received well over 392 items on Hong Kong alone. The Asia-Pacific collection has expanded as well. Over 200 items have been added to our collection. Of these, 145 are books/surveys while periodicals and CD-Roms account for the rest. As of mid-June 2002, DU boasts a collection of 42,250 copies of books, periodicals and other reference materials.

Publications

Co-ordinator: Ms. Wan Po-san

HKIAPS publications aim to disseminate and promote social science research on social, economic and political development of Hong Kong and the Asian Pacific region. It is hoped that extensive and effective dissemination of our research findings will broaden their intellectual and social impact, and solicit more donations for applied social science studies.

Scholars both inside and outside the Chinese University are welcome to submit manuscripts for consideration. Manuscripts received are evaluated by the Editorial Committee in collaboration with invited reviewers of relevant specialities. Publication priority is given to the results of research undertaken by the academics affiliated with the Institute and related to the domains of the established strategic research programmes.

Four publication series, namely the Research Monograph Series, Occasional Paper Series, Shanghai-Hong Kong Development Institute (SHKDI) Occasional Paper Series and USC Seminar Series, are regularly produced. The first three series are mostly the results of research undertaken by scholars at the Institute. The USC Seminar Series publishes selected research papers presented at the Universities Service Centre for China Studies seminars. In addition, the Institute publishes the Asian Economic Journal for the East Asian Economic Association.

Civil Service Courses

As before, the Institute has co-operated with the Hong Kong SAR government's Civil Service Training and Development Institute (CSTDI) in organizing courses for general officers and front-line supervisors (i.e., officers on Master Pay Scale point 10 and above) in the past year.

The Institute helped to organize Module II of the Introductory China Course three times in the last year. Five professors from the Chinese University, all experts in their respective fields, were invited to deliver lectures for the course over a three-day session. Topics covered included housing and social security reform, anti-corruption policy and its social impact and industrialization and its impact on environmental protection. Responses from course participants were positive.

Training for Tianjin Municipal Government Officials

On 18-27 September 2001, the HKIAPS organized a training course on human resources management for officials from the Tianjin municipal government. In total, 30 officials participated. Professors from other universities in Hong Kong joined those from CUHK in delivering nine lectures over a two-week period. Topics covered ranged from the government's role in Hong Kong's economy to how performance appraisals are conducted. The response was positive and the Institute will organize another training course again this October.
