

About the BOCHK Science and Technology Innovation Prize

The BOCHK Science and Technology Innovation Prize (STIP), established by the Hong Kong Alliance of Technology and Innovation (HKATI) and sponsored by the Bank of China (Hong Kong) Limited, is a non-governmental, merit-based award. The Prize aims at rewarding outstanding scientists and research teams who have made significant contributions to science and technology innovation, as well as the transformation of scientific and technological achievements in Hong Kong. The award is divided into five areas: Artificial Intelligence and Robotics, Life and Health, Advanced Manufacturing, Fintech, and New Materials and New Energy. The STIP will be awarded to five individuals or groups per year, with one awardee in each of those areas. Each awardee, either individual or group, will receive a prize of HK$2 million and a trophy. The inaugural award will be presented on 22 December 2022.

The full list of STIP winners is available here.