

Person-centered EXPRESSIVE ARTS

Non-Violent Communication via Arts for Personal and Social Transformation

Description

This course is an immersion in experiential, creative approaches to peace and conflict resolution at the personal, community, social, and global level. Through theory, practice of nonviolent communication, courageous dialogues, and collaborative arts processes, learners study how to express ourselves clearly while listening to our inner needs and those of others. Through the PCEA and creative connection® process, we can recognize and appreciate our ethnic, cultural, religious, and ideological differences. These help bring peace into all areas of our life, enhancing the quality of our relationships, and fostering changes for a better world.

Format

Experiential activities, facilitation demonstration, experience sharing and group discussion

Target Participants

- Participants who have attended 'Opening for Arts and Nourishing the Soul'
