I was a member of the camp, it's conducted in Sichuan Province. And there are a lot of minorities there. There is a main minorities named Yi and they have a main holiday. It's called Torch Festival. And then that night in the city, everyone would put on the lights, and then they would light up all the lights in the house, because they thought the fire was very sacred, and they would dance around that fire. It is generally the twenty-fourth or twenty-fifth day of the sixth month on the Yi calendar. Then the official government will hold some horse racing wrestling dance performances and beauty pageants on that day, and then the local girls will wear gold and silver and compete for the prettiest title.
