Complexity, networks and languages

Ron Chen

Chair Professor and Director of Centre for Chaos and Complex

Netoworks,

City University of Hong Kong

In this talk, we briefly discuss the topic of complexity from a network science perspective, with an attempt to better understand the linguistic structure in some Chinese literary genres such as rhyme poems, free verses and prose poems, revealing the structural complexity of the Chinese language used in modern poems.